OPERATOR WAS SOUND ASLEEP

And Orders Lay Unheeded on His Table

WHILE TRAIN RUSHED PAST

TO MEET DESTRUCTION, AND PASSENGERS A FEARFUL DEATH

The Operator Makes No Excuse Except That He Worked Continously for Seventy-Two Hours.

Denver, March 17—Three more are dead as a result of the Adobe wreck Friday. Thirty-six it is believed lost their lives, but the exact number of dead probably will never be known because of the charred bodies. S. L. Lively, the operator who was asleep at his post and whose failure to deliver a train order resulted in the collision, has not been arrested. Lively says of his failure to deliver the train orders, "I was asleep, that is all." It is asserted that Lively worked several days without sleep. The officials of the road deny that Lively was overworked.

Pueblo, Colo., March 17.—The number of dead as a result of the collision of two passenger trains on the Denver & Rio Grande near Florence, Colo., is conservatively estimated at 35 and the injured at 22. It is thought none of the latter will die.

The trains were the California express No. 3, westbound from Denver, and the Colorado-New Mexico express No. 16, eastbound from Leadville and Grand Junction. They met on a sharp curve and were less than 200 yards apart when the engineers discovered that a collision was imminent. It is known that the engineer of the westbound train put forth every possible effort to bring his train to a stop, but his efforts were fruitless, and although he succeeded in checking the speed of his train, the crash that followed was beyond his power to prevent and he went to his death with his hand on the throttle, faithful to his charge. This much is vouched for by his fireman, who, seeing the uselessness of remaining in the face of sure death, jumped and saved himself. Of the conduct of the engine crew of the eastbound train it can only be said that they died at their posts, for no one lives to tell the story of their heroism.

It is reported that an operator's failure to deliver a train order was the cause of the disastrous collision. The first orders given the two trains were that they should meet at Adobe. Later, it is understood, the dispatcher wired the operator at Swallows, 10 miles east of the scene of the wreck, to hold the westbound train there until the eastbound train No. 16 should pass. When No. 16 reached Florence, its crew was notified to run on to Swallows. Meantime, No. 3, failing to receive its new orders at Swallows, pushed on westward. The operator was asleep, it is said, when No. 3 passed Swallows. When asked by the dispatcher at Pueblo if it had passed he answered "No." A warrant is out for his arrest.

To add to the horror of the disaster fire swept over the wreckage, engulfing the victims in a caldron of flame and leaving only charred and blackened bones to tell the tale of slaughter.

List of dead:

William Hollis, engineer, No. 16, Pueblo; Walter Cosslett, engineer No. 3, Pueblo; H. D. Sudduth, fireman No. 16, Pueblo; Edward E. Baird deputy sheriff, Denver; Archibald Whitney, prisoner, on way to penitentiary at Canon City, in charge of Baird, Denver; Mrs. William Burnside, daughter and daughter's child, all of Kansas, town not learned; A. N. Barlo, Salida, Col.; Miss Grace Barklo, Salida, Col.; Enas McParland, express messenger, Denver; Taylor Hewitt, Lebo, Kansas; Mrs. Lillian Hewitt, Lebo, Kansas; Pearl Hewitt, 15 years old Lebo, Kansas; Mrs. Catherine Hewitt and baby boy, Lebo, Kansas; Ed Cowley, Lebo, Kansas; Fred Jones, Lebo Kansas; Fred Lemecooley, Denver; Mrs. Ed Cowley, Lebo, Kansas; Mrs. Winona Hewitt, Lebo, Kansas.

LAWSON WIRES ROOSEVELT.

Boston, March 17—Thos. W. Lawson has sent a telegram to President Roosevelt saying, "The fraudulent use of national banks has become so recklessly bold as to endanger the savings; that national banks guarantee brokerage houses against loss in big stock gambling deals, and swindles prohibited by law. I intend to stop at no legitimate means of staying such a gigantic swindle."

Saint Patrick, Christs Messenger

BY MICHAEL O'HARA

AROUND the figure of the messenger
Dispatched by God to do his will on earth,
There gather loving myths that serve to blur
The picture Miracles surround his birth
And mission, legends warp his character;
While mists of Time conceal his real worth:
Yet, shining through this legendary sheath,
There is enough to show the soul beneath.

II

THUS was it with the saint who came to tell
The story, then as new as it was sweet
Of Christ to early Erin; and so well
He gave the message that the ages fleet
Have only served to magnify the spell.
The prophet's cry, "How beautiful the feet
Of him who bears glad tidings" to the earth,
Is but a fitting tribute to his worth.

III

ST PATRICK, brave and simple man of God,
Who met so much in empty words as deeds
Proclaimed the gospel new! The fabled rod
By which he banished all the reptile breeds
In truth drove out from Ireland's ancient sod
The serpent gods of outworn pagan creeds,
And thus a higher service rendered he,
For man's aspiring spirit he made free.

IV

HE found no Christians," say the legends old,
"And left no heathen." Where, in all the days
That mark the march of nations, has been told
A tale redounding more to heaven's praise?
Among earth's victors where has been enrolled
One more entitled to immortal bays
Than he, the conqueror without a sword,
Who overcame a people for his Lord?

V

THE grass yet grows in beauty o'er the scene
Where once Patricius labored. May it be
Thus lovely ever till its dewy sheen
Reflects the morn of Erin's liberty,
And may the dear old island's native green
Remain the emblem of his memory
Upon the day her loyal sons proclaim
Undying love and honor to his name.

JOHN D. SAFE FROM SUBPOENA

AS THE WRIT FROM MISSOURI COURT IS INVALID IN NEW YORK.

Standard Oil Magnate is in Hiding at Lakewood, N. J., on Account of Fear of Kidnaping.

Lakewood, N. J., March 17—Although John D. Rockefeller is here he is safe from subpoena service as the process issued by the Supreme court of Missouri is not valid in this state. Unless Attorney General Hadley should seek to have a commission appointed in New York Rockefeller is free to come and go anywhere in New Jersey. Rockefeller is aware of this, but several of his employes say he does not show himself because he is afraid of kidnapers. He has recently installed powerful searchlights at his home. The place is guarded by armed men at night and it is said that they have been instructed to shoot any intruder found lurking around the place after night fall.

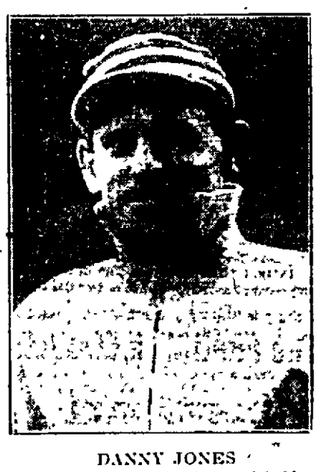

Rockefeller has been seen at home twice this week. A gas meter inspector met Rockefeller face to face yesterday as he was passing through a living room to reach the basement.

Fear Crush of Legislation.

Columbus, March 17.—There is a marked sentiment in the senate in favor of adjourning April 2. The principal objection urged is that it might precipitate a crush of legislation, during which some objectionable laws might be put through.

Federal government will assist in the investigation of the alleged lumber trust in Mississippi.

Lillie, cashier of the wrecked Conneaut National bank were in United States Judge Taylor's court this morning to plead guilty to the misapplication of the bank's funds. This makes fourteen Ohio bankers in the penitentiary now.

WANT WOMEN TO HAVE VOTE

Miners Convention on Record Favoring Female Suffrage

VOTE $5000 FOR DEFENSE

FOR USE OF INDICTED FEDERATION OFFICERS IN IDAHO

The Big Convention Adjourned to Allow Delegates to Participate in St. Patrick's Day Parade.

Indianapolis, March 17—The United Mine Workers' convention this morning voted $5,000 and as much more as necessary to defend the western miners under arrest, charged with the murder of ex-Governor Steunenberg of Idaho.

Indianapolis, March 17—Most of the preliminaries to be settled before the negotiations with the operators begin next week were finished today by the convention of the United Mine Workers. The advance guard of operators is expected to arrive tonight and Sunday. There was but one session of the United Mine Workers today, the usual afternoon session being abandoned to permit the delegates to take part in the St. Patrick's day parade arranged by the local members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

Green was very apparent in the convention hall this morning, and vendors of green ribbons, green canes and green boutonieres did a heavy business in the corridors.

Many of the delegates at this convention wear pink carnations. This is explained by the fact that Patrick Dolan in a remark recently which is said to have been directed at President John Mitchell, declared that it required more than a Prince Albert coat and a carnation to be a labor leader.

The convention went on record this morning as favoring woman suffrage. Such action was requested by Harriet Taylor Upton and the action of the committee on resolutions which reported it was concurred in.

A resolution from James Blee, of Missouri, that no contract with the operators be signed unless it carries a substantial increase in wages was referred to the scale committee.

A resolution from Local 202 for government ownership of mines to prevent the holding of mines by private owners or profit and not for use was non-concurred in by the resolutions committee and the convention accepted its report.

Delegate J. H. Hayes of Illinois, this morning moved that the convention appropriate $5,000 to aid in defending President Moyer and Secretary Haywood and ex-Secretary Pettibone, of the Western Federation of Miners, under arrest in Idaho, charged with the murder of ex-Governor Steunenberg.

Delegate Stanley of Illinois, moved to amend the motion so that action be not taken until Mrs. Langdon, who recently investigated the miner conditions in Colorado, made an address before the convention. The amendment was tabled.

President T. V. Lewis offered an amendment that the United Mine Workers' treasurer be authorized to draw a check for that amount. It was argued by a delegate that an appropriation was not now needed by the officials under arrest.

The Lewis amendment and the Hayes resolution were passed, only about 20 delegates voting "no." Before final action was taken President Mitchell spoke. He said: "I am not going to call the judge in this case a scoundrel until I know him to be one. I believe organized labor should provide for them the best possible lawful defense and give the arrested men all chance to prove themselves innocent. I am not opposed to the motion made, but I would have made the appropriation provisional upon whether our aid be found necessary. I would not limit it to $5,000. Make this statement because I do not wish the western miners to believe I do not wish this organization to come to their rescue because of their assaults on me in the past."

HERR MOST DIED TODAY

Cincinnati, March 17.—Herr Johann Most, high priest of anarchy, died at noon today.

PRELATE IN CONTROVERSY WITH ST. PAUL PRIEST.

St. Paul, Minn., March 17.—Almost simultaneously with the departure for Rome of Archbishop John Ireland, of this city, announcement is made that a controversy involving him on one side and Father J. T. Harrison and Daniel W. Lawler, a prominent Catholic layman, of St. Paul, on the other, has been referred to the Vatican for decision, and promises to result in sensational revelations. It is whispered in church circles here that Archbishop Ireland is to be appointed a Curia Cardinal and to take up his permanent residence in Rome, but members of the Harrison party declare their belief that he has been summoned to the Holy See to explain his actions.

According to the friends of Father Harrison, who was for many years in charge of St. Joseph's Parish in St. Paul, he was instructed by Archbishop Ireland in 1900 to set about the building of a church to cost $50,000, and a committee of parishioners, of which Mr. Lawler is chairman, took the matter in hand and raised that amount. Subsequently, it is charged, the Archbishop decreed that the church should cost $100,000, and before the four years prescribed for its completion the committee has raised $73,000 and arranged to obtain the balance.

A sight was selected at Dayton and western avenues, in the fashionable residence district, for which $33,000 was paid, and the work of erection was begun.

When the project had progressed thus far, it is averred, the Archbishop announced that St. Joseph's parish had been joined to the Cathedral parish, and therefore, did not need a new church, but instead, a cathedral to cost $1,000,000 would be erected on Selby Hill.

RIOTER FINED THE LAW'S LIMIT

Springfield, March 17.—Judge Miller fined Lem Copenhafer $700, costs and ten days in the work house, the law's limit, on a charge of carrying concealed weapons during the riot and for contempt of court. Copenhafer swore at the court yesterday and called the judge vile names. The sentence means three years and eight months in the work house.

Her son, Emil Hoover, is named as her heir. No mention is made as to the value or location of her property. Mrs. Chadwick has also executed another paper to a certain extent describing her possessions. These are matters while in the penitentiary. She receives a daily remittance in money, some said to be for large amounts.

SEATS DOLAN.

Miners' Convention Endorses Work of the Executive Board.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 17—The special national convention of the United Mine Workers of America indorsed the action of the executive board in sustaining the finding of President John Mitchell in the matter of ousting Patrick Dolan and Uriah Bellingham from the presidency and vice presidency of district No. 5, western Pennsylvania. As far as the national organization is concerned this is the end of Dolan's case. Only the pleas of President Mitchell and Secretary W. B. Wilson prevented the expulsion of Dolan from the organization. Dolan and his supporters claim something of a victory in defeat from the fact that he was seated as a delegate in the convention, as was also Vice President Bellingham. The two actions followed immediately on the partial report of the credentials committee, which included the names of Bellingham and Dolan as delegates.

DECLINES TO FLOAT RUSSIAN LOAN.

St. Petersburg, March 17—A dispatch from St. Petersburg says Herr Mendelssohn, the Berlin banker, who is in that city in connection with the proposed Russian loan, was received in audience by the czar today, and that he declined to float a new Russian loan in Germany.

VILLAGE GUTTED.

Business Section Ravaged By Fire. Property Destroyed.

White Pigeon, Mich., March 17.—The business section of this town was nearly wiped out by fire which started in the furniture store of Alfred Wicket. The blaze, which is supposed to have started from an overheated stove during the proprietor's temporary absence, quickly destroyed the furniture store and spread to adjoining business places. Only seven store buildings remain of the business section. The fire destroyed two saloons, the postoffice and barber shop, the Farmers' Savings bank, E. N. Gortner's dry goods store, Gillam's dry goods store, A. L. Reed's confectionary store, Mason's and E. A. Hamilton's drug stores and the office of Dr. J. R. Williams.

DECLARED INSANE FOR ANNOYING J. P. MORGANS

New York, March 17—Mrs. Ella Barbara Williams, an English woman, recently arrested for annoying members of J. P. Morgan's firm, was declared insane. According to the Earl of Suffolk, at London, Mrs. Williams received marked attention from W. I. Winans of Baltimore, and upon his death inherited a large part of his big estate. In the fight for her rights she lost and Mrs. Williams was reduced to poverty. Suffolk says he gave Mrs. Williams a letter of introduction to [illegible]. Mrs. Williams said she made an assignment to Morgan of her claims.

COUNT CASTELLANE HAS INFLUENZA.

Paris, March 17—The preliminary hearing in the divorce suit of Countess Anna De Castellane against Count Boni De Castellane which was to have taken place before Judge Dute today, when the formal effort to reconcile their differences would have been made, was postponed at the last moment at the request of the count, who sent word that he is confined to his room by an attack of influenza. No date has been fixed for the hearing.

ROGERS TOLD ROOSEVELT

That Great Uneasiness Prevailed In Financial Circles

A WAVE OF RADICALISM

MIGHT SWEEP OVER COUNTRY WHICH COULD NOT BE CONTROLLED

Unless the President Used His Influence, Was Suggested by Standard Oil Magnate.

Washington, March 17.—A story came out this morning concerning the conference which H. H. Rogers and J. D. Archbold, vice president and treasurer respectively, of the Standard Oil company had with President Roosevelt nearly a fortnight ago that Rogers asked for the interview and requested that Secretary of State Root be present. The president granted his wish, but Root was unable to attend. It is reported that the errand of Rogers, according to an official of the administration was to advise the president that great uneasiness prevailed in financial circles in New York and to ask him to use his powerful influence in assuaging it. Rogers and his associates were apprehensive lest a wave of radicalism which could not be controlled might sweep over the country unless the conservative forces at Washington made earnest efforts to check it and believed the president was in a position to quiet the unrest which they described because of the confidence reposed in him by the mass of the people. How deeply impressed he was by their message from Wall street, was more or less a matter of conjecture, says the story, but possibly there is some significance in the fact that he is refraining from making any suggestions to senators on the subject of railroad rate legislation, although his silence may be otherwise construed.

CIVIC IMPROVEMENT

(Communicated.)

Of the many reasons for advocating civic art, perhaps none appeals so strongly to the average citizen as the practical one that it pays. In the natural rivalry between cities what greater inducement could be offered to attract wealth and influence than that of the cities appearance. It is the nature of beauty to attract —of disorder, ugliness or uncleanliness to repel. While the private grounds and residences of American cities are justly famed for their beauty, a like commendation cannot be given given to our public places and highways. Efforts for adornment are generally concentrated at the parks which are seldom seen. Streets appear to be solely a means of communication and although daily thronged with the populace receive but scant attention. The indifference arises no doubt from a long familiarity with existing conditions. One becomes accustomed to noisy, uneven pavements; to brick walks whose irregularities are but a series of pitfalls for the rainy day or night pedestrian; to the litter, paper and dust which lie unmolested until aroused to malicious activity by the wind, the speeding auto or the infrequent visits of the street cleaner. Numerous unsightly poles decorated with advertisements adorn the street corners. Not infrequently do streets extend in dull, uninteresting vistas, without a redeeming strip of turf or the grateful shade of trees, bordered only by architectural incongruities that tax ones powers of description. The advertiser we have always with us. Wherever we go are seen his glaring lettering and grotesque pictures. Nothing is free from his desecration. Even the darkness is not exempt, for to his aid has been brought electricity with its flashing signs. It no doubt has been a matter of regret to some manufacurers that the stars of night could not be properly adjusted to letter their particular brand of soap or baking powder. Civic art would not stifle business energy, but seeks to regulate only its public manifestations. In crowded sections where traffic is most conjested, are found numberless obstructions in the way of boxes, billboards, stands and posters. Even the sky is obscured by clouds of smoke, a network of wires, flaunting banners and projecting signs. An occasional visit to a park will scarcely counteract the impressions received by the daily or hourly contact by the multitude with these depressing influences. Constant association with beauty is needed; as then it is of untold value in purifying the morals, inspiring loftier ideals, elevating the character and producing an energy which finds expression in practical results.

The first requisite for civic beauty is absolute cleanliness; which can be obtained by an ever-present corps of workers, who remove dirt as soon as detected. Ample funds for this might be obtained by enforcing ordinances prohibiting certain forms of uncleanliness. The regulation of the height of buildings, the building line the harmony and diversity of architecture throughout the street, all properly belong to municipal authorities. Perhaps nothing so relieves an otherwise uninteresting section as the presence of verdure. When we consider the number of years required for bringing trees to maturity, they should should not be ruthlessly sacrificed to defective gas and electric mains, nor the unintentional depredations of the electric linemen. Bare walls and architectural defects are speedily covered by ivy with a refreshing mass of green. A concerted effort on the part of those occupying brick blocks in placing window boxes filled with vines and flowers would completely transform those localities. Possibly a prize offered for the finest window-box might prove an inducement. Co-operation is equally effective in residential sections, whether applied to street cleaning or to a harmonious scheme of decoration. Here attractive thoroughfares with numerous, substantial seats conveniently placed is the incentive needed for a free out of door life. It is an idea borrowed from certain cities where much of the business and most of the visiting is done in the open air. Spaces that are not far removed from the heart of the city might well be furnished in a way that would make of them out door social centers.

THE "BRIDGE" AGAIN.

Editor Advocate—Without doubt Mr. H. A. Montgomery is quite right as to the secret society called the Know Nothings, using the bridge from the Doty House to the old Pataskala building in 1854 to 1856, but I think the structure was built some time before those dates, and was used for the different purposes I spoke of in a previous letter.

The Know Nothing party was organized in 1853, and did not get a foothold in old Licking county until 1854 or 1855, when they elected Daniel Humphrey as Probate Judge, Mr. Tenney as Sheriff, and Chauncy Ball as County Treasurer, to whom I paid my first property tax in 1856, and still have his receipt for the same in my possession. The Whigs and Know Nothings joined hands in 1856 and nominated Millard Fillmore as their candidate for president, and A. J. Donaldson for vice president, and Maryland was the only state carried by Fillmore. After this most of the Know Nothings jumped over into the Republican party, and, strange to say, they were followed soon after by a lot of our good old German Democrats; who certainly made strange bedfellows with these Know Nothing patriots, who had been advocating for two or three years "America for Americans," and that a foreigner was not entitled to vote until he had been in the United States for 21 years. I think the bridge referred to antedates the history of the Know Nothing party by one or two years. Mr. Charles Montgomery kept store next door to me on the South side, in 1856, and Thomas Taylor, (brother of Alonzo Taylor), was his chief clerk at the time. THOMAS H. SITES.

NEWARK LOST AT MARYSVILLE

Hopes for Championship of Central Ohio Blasted by Defeat

ASHVILLE GAME IS DISPUTED

PICKAWAY COUNTY LADS CLAIM THEY WON BY A GOAL

Friday Night's Defeat is Second by Ohio High Schools This Season--- Other Games Won Easy.

Marysville, O., March 17.—The Marysville High school basketball team defeated Newark High here last night, in Armory hall in a fast, interesting and exciting contest by a score of 15 to 7. There was a large and enthusiastic audience.

Newark's defeat blasted their hopes of winning the state championship. The game was rather rough in both halves. Southard and Conner were the star players for Marysville. Line-up:

Marysville—15.		Newark—7.
	Right forward.
Southard		Beecher
	Left forward.
Conner		Bell
	Center.
Neutzel		Prior
	Right guard.
Morelock		McFarland
	Left guard.
E. Calloway		Slater

Summary: Baskets from field—Southard, 5; Conner, 2; Slater, Prior. Foul goals—Beecher, 2; Bell, Conner. Referee and umpire (alternating)—Speer, of Newark, and Clucker, of Marysville. Timers—Morey and Norpell. Scorers—Sheridan and Lewis. Time of halves—20 minutes.

A dispute has arisen over the game between Newark and Ashville, at the latter place, Thursday night, in which the score was very close. Newark claimed the victory by the score of 28 to 27, while Ashville sets up a counter claim that the score was 27 to 25. The difference is only one goal and it is doubtful if the claim will ever be satisfactorily settled as Ashville will cling to her claim and Newark will not give up what she thinks belongs to her.

A special from Ashville to a Columbus paper follows:

Ashville's High school basketball team managers and players declared that Newark High did not win the game here Thursday night by a score of 28 to 27, but insist that victory rested with Ashville by a score of 27 to 25.

Ashville gives Newark credit with having a good team, but one not quite fast enough for the home outfit. It is said that the Newark scorekeeper made no protest at the finish of the game.

This summary of the game is given in support of the contention that Newark was defeated.

Field goals—Stoker, 6; Noggle, 4; Hickle, 2; A. Beaver, Beecher, 2; Bell 2; Prior, 3; Stater, 2. Foul goals—Stoker, Beecher, 7.

Newark's report of the summary is as follows: Field goals—Stoker, 5; Noggle, 5; Hickle, 2; A. Beaver, Bell, 2; Prior, 3; Stater, 2. Foul goals—Stoker, Beecher, 8.

The honor of winning this game, however, would do the local school but little good in their claim for the central Ohio night. Their hope for lost Friday night. Their hope for the state honor was blasted in this game. If the game at Ashville had been won and the Marietta game had not gone against them, another game with Ashville would give them a sort of claim on the championship.

SPORTING GOSSIP.

The Granville High school football team will play in Zanesville tonight. The Zanesville lads are making preparations for a hard fight in the game and they fear that the college town boys will turn a few tricks in the game.

Nel Mason, of last year's Idlewilde bunch, who secured his release several weeks ago, will play in the Central League. He has signed with Springfield.

Al Schweitzer, the star outfielder of last year's Newark team, was in the city a week ago enroute to his home in Cincinnati where he will visit before going to New York to report. Schweitzer has been suffering from a sort of paralysis of the nerves of the face, but thinks that he will suffer no ill effects when playing ball.

Danny Jones visited the city a few days ago and made a trip around the city, calling on the members of the baseball company. He was seen holding an interesting conversation with President Moser. Danny doesn't like the idea of playing in a sun field.

"Lefty" Snyder, who has been in Uhrichsville for nearly a month since the opening of the skating rink there, has return detNoewra there, has returned to Newark and in a few days will go to Columbus where he will begin his annual spring gym training. He will be "in he pink of condition" when the season opens.

W. P. Bissell writes his friends here that he is suffering from carbuncles. "Bis" was a popular player among the fans here last season, being of a quiet disposition and always in the game. His many friends wish him a speedy recovery.

Information comes from Cincinnati that Irve Wrattan, who has signed again with Newark, would be well pleased if the Newark management woul dfire him. He doesn't want to play here and would do most anything to get fired.

Tate Cromley, the Mt. Vernon pitcher, who played with Indainapolis last year, has gone to Wabash where he will coach a college baseball team until time to report at Indianapolis. Crowley claims that this is his last year in professional baseball.

NERVE TABLETS

Sergeant Orr's Letter

Nerve troubles are real. They lead to disastrous results. That may happen to any one. Zell Nerve Tablets feed starved nerves. That's why they restore perfect health. They build nerve strength. They tone up the nervo-spinal system and make rich red blood.

Read what Sergeant Orr, winner of the Sea Girt championship medal for rifle shooting, says about Zell Nerve Tablets:

NEWARK, OHIO, Sept. 18, 1905.

THE ZELL DRUG CO., Galion, Ohio.

Gentlemen,—I want to express to you my appreciation of your valuable Nerve Remedy—Zell Nerve Tablets. When I began practicing for the annual State Shoot last summer, I was weak, nervous, and far from condition for such an ordeal. I decided on your remedy as the proper one to use in my case, and used it constantly during my practice and during the shoot, and was highly gratified to be able to win the championship of Ohio in this shoot, and to be selected as one of the contestants in the National Military Competition Shoot at Sea Girt.

My success I attribute largely to the use of your remedy and continued use of them up to and during the Sea Girt Shoot, and give it credit for assisting me very materially in the winning of the title which I now bear, the Champion Military Rifle Shot of the United States.

I regard your remedy as a most valuable one, and would advise any one needing a Nerve Remedy to at least give Zell Nerve Tablets a trial. Very truly,

(Signed) SERGEANT CLARENCE E. ORR,

Valuable Cartoon.

Mr. Rufus Putnam, proprietor of the job printing establishment on West Main street, near Fourth, on Friday received a unique reminder of the approach of St. Patrick's Day from his son John, who is employed in the linotype room of one of the enterprising papers of Salt Lake City. The novelty is to represent a cartoon of St. Patrick, the features being formed by a unique manner of arranging five dollar bills, over a background of "greenbacks" to represent the shamrock. Altogether in the formation of the figure $45 was used. It is needless to say that Mr. Putnam is pleased over the novelty of the design, not to mention the money.

He was committed to the stone pile.

The Icicle Show.

The size, variety and beauty of the icicles hanging from the roofs of hundreds of houses surpasses anything of the kind seen for many years. There has been some rivalry among citizens as to who could claim the largest specimen hanging from their houses. A gentleman claimed that a fine one was suspended from the roof of his house that would measure eight feet in length. This prompted the reporter to issue a challenge that this specimen was the longest one that could be produced in the city. But when another citizen claimed that one nine feet long was glistening in the sunshine from the roof of his house, the reporter at once abandoned any further notion of issuing challenges as to the size of icicles.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY

Observed in Newark by Those Who Hold in Reverence Ireland's Patron Saint.

St. Patrick's Day in Newark was observed by many who from motives of religion or sentiment held in reverence the patron saint of Ireland, but there was no formal celebration of the day. High hmass was held at the St. Francis de Sales church at 9 o'clock in the morning, by Father O'Boylan. As is usual in this day the great majority of men on the streets, and for that matter many women, too, wore a shamrock, green ribbon or other token in the coat lapel, to indicate that the day was remembered by them. And what true Irishman in Newark will ever forget the day? No matter where he may be, far away beyond the Atlantic's foam and by the long wash of the Australasian seas, amid the barren wastes of the frozen north, or under the sunny skies of the Southland's fair domain, or wherever upon the inhabited globe the exiled sons and daughters of Erin's Isle are to be found, there are hearts that are thrilled on St. Patrick's day as they return in spirit to that isle of emerald hue, and with its people join in celebrating its national day, and from their hearts goes forth the earnest prayer that soon the sun of freedom will shed its effulgent beams upon a long suffering people, and that their beloved country will take the place that was destined to her from her very inception as a nation.

WORLD'S FAIR FOR IRELAND

Ireland is to have a world's fair. It is to be held in Dublin next year. It has been planned for years, and among the indefatigable workers to bring it into being may be mentioned ex-Lord Mayor James Shanks of Dublin. That it will be well worth going to see is proven by the successful exhibit made by Ireland at the world's fair at St. Louis. Now that she is to have an exposition of her own, she will, of course, far and away eclipse her effort in a show 4,000 miles from her shores. The wonderful industrial awakening of the Emerald Isle during the past decade will furnish both incentive and material for the coming world's fair and will make it a milestone in her progress, for it in turn will become an incentive to further development. It is hoped that sons of Erin from all over the earth, and especially from America, will make the exposition an occasion for a visit to the old sod. Outside of these a large attendance is expected from other nationalities. All the world is invited.

A large tract of ground has been selected for the fair, and work is already under way. The necessary guarantee fund has been raised, and there is no possibility for the enterprise to fail. The exposition will run all the summer of 1907 and will reach the full tide of its glory in the autumn months. The chief feature, of course, will be that of home manufactures. Every trade will be in evidence, all the arts and crafts will be represented, cottage industries will be made prominent, and, taken all in all, the Irish section will be such as to gladden the hearts of Erin's sons and to open the eyes of all men to her new revival. The show will act as a magnet to draw Irishmen from all the lands to which they have scattered and will have a tendency to produce race union and solidarity such as have not been witnessed for a century.

The Irish exhibit will not be all, however. Other nations will be invited to have displays at the fair, and all the chief ones doubtless will be represented. This will give an opportunity for English manufacturers to display their wares such as is not often presented. American trade, which is so rapidly invading the world's markets, will also be in evidence, while France, Germany, Russia and even faroff Japan will take advantage of the occasion. Altogether it is hoped to make this a truly gigantic enterprise worthy of the century and of the Irish people.

The Industrial exposition, however splendid it may be, will not be more of an attraction for the sons of old Ireland than will the artistic and literary features. The Gaelic renaissance will have a considerable part in this unique exposition, and one will be enabled to hear the old songs in the mother tongue. The Gaelic theaters will not be the least interesting portion of the entertainment. These and a thousand other things will make it a gala year for Dublin.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is not really a sickness, but a symptom. It is a symptom that a certain set of nerves is ailing. Not the voluntary nerves that enable you to walk and talk and act—but the AUTOMATIC STOMACH NERVES over which your mind has no control.

I have not room here to explain how these tender, tiny nerves control and operate the stomach. How worry breaks them down and causes indigestion. How misuse wears them out and causes dyspepsia. How neglect may bring on kidney, heart and other troubles through sympathy. I have not room to explain how these nerves may be reached and strengthened and vitalized and made stronger by a remedy I spent years in perfecting—now known by physicians and Druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. (Tablets or Liquid.) I have not room to explain how this remedy, by removing the cause, usually puts certain end to indigestion, belching, heartburn, insomnia, nervousness, dyspepsia. All of these things are fully explained in the book I will send you free when you write. Do not fail to send for the book. It tells how the solar plexus governs digestion and a hundred other things every one ought to know—for all of us, at some time or other have indigestion. With the book I will send free my "Health Token"—an intended passport to good health.

Arrested in Newark.

On a warrant filed before a magistrate at Hinton, West Virginia, Hugh B. Debord, a member of the firm of Debord, Griffith & Company, was arrested here Friday night by Officer Ed. Daily of the local police force and George M. Griffith, a special constable from Hinton, also a member of the firm with Debord. The affidavit charges the embezzlement of $583.79 of the firm's funds. The affidavit was filed by J. Hugh Miller, cashier of the First National Bank of Hinton.

Debord was traced to this city and the officers succeeded in locating him at the office of Mr. Warner. The man was placed under arrest and retained Attorneys Smythe & Smythe as counsel. Mr. Frank Bolton represented the State of West Virginia, and a settlement was made for $250.

Skirmish in the House.

Washington, D. C., March 17.—For an instant in the house there was a lapse in the vigilance of those who have been on guard to prevent legislation which would take away the rank of lieutenant general in the army and the chances of Generals Corbin and MacArthur for promotion. Mr. Prince of Illinois, whose bill abolishing the grade in question is the regular order of business under call of committees, slipped into the legislative branch. There was an immediate call to arms on both sides and for three hours the friends of the generals filibustered against the bill. The net result was that the previous question is ordered on the bill and an amendment is pending, having been offered by Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio, which extends the time of operation of the bill so as to allow the promotion of the two officers named.

Purchased By Harriman.

Los Angeles, March 17.—Official confirmation of recent rumors that E. H. Harriman had gained control of the Los Angeles Pacific electric interurban system is found in the official record of a meeting of the board of directors and stockholders just filed with the county clerk. It is declared semi-authoritatively that the Harriman interests have bought the system in its entirety. The lines transferred include approximately 100 miles of street railway in operation between Los Angeles and many suburban and beach towns.

A Joyous St. Patrick's Day.

(Pittsburg Post.)

Today the sons and daughters of Ireland everywhere will have a kindly thought for the dear land of their birth. Each recurring St. Patrick's day serves to recall memories of the green isle in which he wrought such a great work and which has had so much of glory and pathos in its history. There was a time when the celebration of the day led to serious trouble among the sons of Ireland who should have been united and whose unhappy divisions have been the chief source of the woes of their country. But, happily there has come the dawn of a new day. Recent elections in the north of Ireland have shown that many who have always fiercely opposed each other and thus played into the hands of the common oppressor have at last united for their own and their country's sake. And while this has been happening in Ireland itself, great English statesmen, leaders of the party in power, have been standing up in parliament and pledging themselves to promote that which is dear to all true Irishmen. Therefore, it is that this St. Patrick's day will be the most joyous one for many a year.

MILITARY COAT

In the Possession of Col. Clifton Rosebrough, Was That Worn By a U. S. A. Surgeon Between 1812 and 1818.

The following letter from Mr. Rayburn-Rathbun, assistant secretary in charge of the National Museum at Washington, D. C., to Mr. Clifton Rosebrough, who sent for information in regard to an old uniform coat, was received today:

Washington, D. C., March 13
Mr. Clifton H. Rosebrough, 127 S. Fifth st., Newark, Ohio:

Dear Sir—The pieces of cloth, velvet and cord which you transmitted on February 26th, have been examined by Mr. Paul Beckwith, assistant curator of the division of history, who reports that they belong to a uniform coat such as was worn by surgeons in the three rifle regiments of the United States army from 1808-1818. He states that the brass button which you also sent is of later date and was used in the infantry arm of the service. A memorandum which he has submitted is inclosed.

The specimens will be returned to you by mail.

Very respectfully yours,
R. RATHBUN,
Assistant Secretary in charge of National Museum.

Copy of memorandum of Mr Paul Beckwith. Acc. 11233. Clifton H. Rosebrough.

"In 1812, the uniform of the first rifle regiment, organized in 1808, was grey cloth for coat, vest and pantaloons." The three additional rifle regiments raised for the war with Great Britain were clad in the same grey uniform. In 1816 regulation insignia of surgeons, hospital surgeons and mates, when acting as surgeons, was an embroidered star on each side of the collar. The uniform is therefore that of a surgeon of the Rifle Brigade, 1812-1818.

OHIO CONGRESSMAN DENOUNCES TAFT

And Snubs Roosevelt—Sensation at Republican Convention By Member From Portsmouth.

Jackson, O., March 17.—Although refraught with surprises, the convention held here Thursday by the judicial district, furnished no greater sensation than the attack on Secretary Taft and the snub of President Roosevelt by Congressman Henry Bannon, of Portsmouth, in his speech nominating Judge Jones, the successful candidate.

Bannon also took occasion to praise Foraker and Dick, especially the former, whose "courageous" stand on the rate bill he lauded to the skies.

THE "BALM" OF SCRIPTURE.

The Oil of the Pine Tree is supposed to be the balm of Scripture. It contains great medicinal properties and was regarded with the utmost esteem by the ancients and to the present day is peculiarly prized by the people of the East.

Dr. Leach, a noted authority on diseases of the throat and lungs, who established a camp for consumptives in the Pine Woods of Maine, and whose remarkable cures there have attracted great attention from the medical world, says that his entire treatment consisted of fresh air, nourishing food and the Pure Virgin Oil of the White Pine Trees mixed with Whisky and Glycerine in the following proportions:

Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) ½ oz.
Glycerine ..... 2 "
Good Whisky ..... 8 "

Used in teaspoonful doses every four hours.

Dr. Leach claims the above mixture will heal and strengthen the lungs, break up a cold in twenty-four hours, and cure any cough that is curable.

The ingredients can be secured from any good prescription druggist at small cost and can be easily mixed in your own home.

Inquiry at the prescription department of a leading local pharmacy elicited the information that Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) is put up only in half-ounce vials for dispensing. Each vial is securely sealed in a round woode nease with engraved wrapper with the name—"Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure)"—plainly printed thereon. Only the cheaper Oils are sold in bulk, but these produce nausea and never effect the desired results. 6

NOTICE.

I will open my office every Monday night, from 7 to 8:30, for those who wish to take accident and sick insurance that cannot come in the day time. Remember, no medical examination, no other expense. Bring your $1.00 or $5.00 and take your policy home with you. This protects you for one year.

Should this insurance be carried to your door, the price would be $1.00 more. Take the hint, save your dollars. Come and get your policy like many are doing.

Shot By Burglar.

Midland, Mich., March 17.—Milton P. Anderson, who was the head of the Exchange bank here, which recently failed, is thought to be dying at his home, being shot through the abdomen. Mr. Anderson says that he was awakened by some one moving about in his room. Having armed himself with a cane, he says, he followed the intruder to the bathroom, where the man, who was short and thickset, shot him. Mr. Anderson then made his way back to his room.

INJUSTICE

Done to West End Man by Anonymous Letter Sent to Police—Investigation Exonerates Him.

The investigation by the police of the anonymous letter concerning the alleged misconduct of a West Newark husband recently, has been dropped. It seems that the husband has been done a gross injustice, as the woman, for whose death he is said to have been responsible, made a statement before her death, which would exonerate him from all blame. It is also claimed that the woman took no drug to accomplish her purpose. The husband bears a good reputation in his neighborhood and the police were informed that the neighbors did not believe him guilty of any of the charges made in the letter. The anonymous letter seems to have caused all the trouble.

WOMEN TO THE FORE

They Play an Important Part in the Work of Legislature

CLEVELAND WOMEN ROUTED DOTY

Female Lobbyists Appear in Connection With County Salary Bill. League Being Formed to Report Statesmen's Record.

Columbus, O., March 17.—Women are playing an important part in the work of the Ohio legislature this session regardless of the fact that they have but limited privileges at the ballot box with little or no immediate prospect of any extension of the elective franchise. Nor are they daunted by the defeat of the Briggs bill to give women voting power at local option elections, the defeat of which followed the unfortunate incident of women in the galleries hissing members of the house who spoke against the bill during debate; nor by the defeat of the bill which proposed to give women permission to vote on all questions relating to the public schools, which would have enabled them to vote on bond issues, etc., instead of merely being able to vote for the election of members of the school board. Another bill even threatened to deny women their limited privileges at the ballot box, but it found an early welcome to oblivion.

* * * *

There is a measure pending, however, in which women are very much interested, especially Cleveland women who take an active interest in the public schools. They are intensely opposed to the Corlett bill relating to powers of boards of education,

ED W. DOTY,
Clerk of the House, Put to Flight by Delegation of Women.

which they call the "one-man power bill." Eight Cleveland women headed by Mrs. Isabel Alexander appeared before the house committee on public schools Thursday, to state their objections to this bill, claiming they came as representatives of all the women's clubs of Cleveland.

"We do not object to the authority given the superintendent to appoint and discharge teachers," said Mrs. Alexander, "but it should be subject to the approval of the school board. The worst kind of school politics is made possible by such a law. A new superintendent can fill the schools with friends and no power would be able to prevent it."

Here is where Ed Doty, clerk of the house and a former member of the legislature "got in bad." Doty formerly held an important clerical position in Cleveland's school system and also takes an active interest in the school affairs of that city. He listened to the arguments made by the women before the committee and attempted to refute them. He should have waited a more favorable day when the coast would have been clear of women. As it was he got into a controversy with Mrs. Alexander's delegation and there was a rapid cross-fire of words. Doty could not stand up under the fusillade and fled from the room.

Women always will have the last word, you know.

Women of the W. C. T. U. are not disposed to permit the senate judiciary committee to sit supinely on the anti-cigaret bill passed by the house. This is one of the reforms agitated by the W. C. T. U. and the committee has shown no disposition to give the bill a finish fight on the floor of the senate. Members of the W. C. T. U. think an injustice is thus being visited on them and at a meeting this week they adopted a resolution insisting that the committee bring the bill before the senate. One of the members suggested that a delegation of women go before the committee and demand an immediate report on the bill, firmly believing the bill would pass if given a fair opportunity.

Senator Howe of Cleveland introduced a bill to provide for the appointment of eight women shop inspectors, and he will do his best to have it passed. This step is advocated by many women's clubs in the state with a view to closer scrutiny into reputed violations of the child-labor laws. It is believed that women can do espionage of this sort much better than men have been doing it. Men do not pry so persistently into the ages of minors employed in workshops and factories as they might; women with their natural love for children and perpetual propensity for punishing Adam because he laid all the blame on Eve for eating forbidden fruit would look closer for children laboring on the treadmill of industry instead of being in the schools where they ought to be. Moreover, it is said that those who willfully employ children under the age fixed by statute have no fear of shop inspectors, that when the shop inspector comes in at the front door children under the age limit are hustled out of the back door with whispered instruction to "go play awhile." Women inspectors would not be so easily baffled.

Lobbying by women on the county salary bill comes dangerously near the scandal line. Before the senate passed in amended form the Wilson house bill senators were besieged on every hand by lobbyists of all sorts. They dreaded to go to the smoking room or to answer telephone calls, and with evident disgust briefly scanned telegrams and letters with which they were flooded. It is presumed that at least some of the women who sought interviews with senators were in the service of the lobbyists.

It is charged, further, that allurements of all sorts were thrown in the way of senators during the week, from invitations to luncheon, dinner parties, automobile rides and theaters to select parties in the "bad lands."

A senator whose name need not be mentioned, said: "A woman called me up several times trying to make a date with me. I don't know why, but it looks very odd."

Another senator said: "I had the same experience several times. It looked to me like baiting a trap." Others in the group laughed and nodded their heads significantly. Particular notice was taken of a handsome woman who visited the senate regularly several days and endeavored to make the acquaintance of senators known to be against high salaries and the fee system.

Of course all these circumstances were associated with the fight put up against the county salary bill.

It is expected the house will concur in the amendments to the Wilson bill made by the senate, which put the bill in such shape that the senate passed it by unanimous vote. Otherwise the bill will go to a conference committee, the report of which would bring the bill again before both branches, thus affording another means of procrastination. By making the maximum salary $6,000, raising the minimum scale for county clerks from $75 to $85 per 1,000 to help the smaller counties, giving county commissioners power to limit the appropriations for clerk hire, and some changes of less importance, with a proviso that the bill shall not go into effect until Jan. 1, 1907, the senate feels that it put the salary question in such shape that it need not hesitate to concur, and get this stumbling block out of the way.

Once this is accomplished the day of adjournment will be hastened as the house Friday morning adopted a joint resolution to adjourn April 2. It now goes to the senate.

The house did not higgle over the amendments made by the senate in the Jones bill for removing saloons from residential districts by petition instead of by ballot. This is the act the Anti-Saloon league wanted substituted for the Brannock law. It is not clear that the Jones bill will operate as a repeal of the Brannock law. If it does not, the temperance forces may still fall back on the Brannock law should the courts set aside the Jones act.

One of the senate's amendments requires that a petition must be filed within three months of the date of the first signature. Another provides for a fine of $100 to $500 for bribing, coercing or boycotting voters into signing or refusing to sign a petition.

The saloonkeepers are at the disadvantage of not having the right to initiate petitions until after a district has been "dry" two years. It was equal right under the Brannock law to petition for a vote which enabled the saloonkeepers to map out favorable districts and obtain a victory at the ballot box.

Districts may contain 300 to 5,000 voters, which raises the maximum equal to a city of 15,000 population or to include a whole ward of the larger cities. Here a controversy is threatened as to whether smaller districts voted "wet" under the Brannock law may not be swallowed up in a larger district defined in a petition.

The Jones bill is a law as it was signed by the governor.

A league is being organized to keep the public informed on the official records of members of the legislature. It is to be known as the Ohio Legislative League, and proposes to furnish to home papers of the solons for publication the facts concerning individual acts and votes of legislators on all important questions. The league promises to be absolutely nonpartisan. Such publication is to be made on the work of the present general assembly.

A favorable report on the Thomas banking bill was made by the house committee on banks and banking. This bill originated with the state board of commerce. It creates a department of banks and banking with a superintendent appointed by the governor at a salary of $5,000. The provisions of the bill have been so widely published as to require no analysis of its details here. The bill as recommended is slightly amended.

Action by the senate on Governor Herrick's recess appointments was postponed from Friday to Tuesday. This was not altogether a manifestation of a common superstition about bad luck attending Friday, but because the Republican senators asked further time on account of the illness of Senator Mather. Senator Lamb was willing, so the matter went over.

ATTORNEYS SAY UNKIND THINGS

OF ONE ANOTHER IN COURT AT COSHOCTON FRIDAY NIGHT AT SPECIAL SESSION.

Judge Roche Called Attorney McDowell a Liar and Both Wanted to Fight.

Coshocton, O., March 17—The Age this afternoon will print a complete story of the alleged attempted bribery of Witness Dobson by Judge Roche, one of the defendant's attorneys. The allegation made by the attorney that the state's counsel first gave the information to the newspapers will be denied flatly and the story of how it came direct from Dobson himself will be given.

The special session of the court last night might have revealed several interesting facts had not the attorneys on both sides played the "Alphonse and Gaston" act so cleverly. Editor Snyder of the Age, was requested to appear in the court prepared to tell just where the story originated, but the state's attorney arose and said: "Upon my honor as a lawyer, I said nothing to the reporters about this charge." Not to be outdone by the counsel's politeness, Judge Roche arose and protested against the newspaper men being asked to tell their story, saying, "I have a high enough regard for the word of a lawyer so that it is not necessary to produce evidence to corroborate his statements."

The court became very much vexed when the attorneys later engaged in an altercation and Judge Roche called the state's attorney Mr. McDowell, a liar when the latter accused Roche of calling him an "Irish pomp."

"That word means fight," said McDowell, and Judge Roche replied: "Well, what if it does? Tom Roche is ready and waiting."

The attorneys were called down by the court and aside from a severe reprimand the court took no action in the disgraceful scene.

Dobson was placed on the stand for cross-examination today just after court was opened. He said that he was riding with the accused one day a year before the murder and they met Mrs. Hughes, the murdered woman. Neither Dickerson nor Mrs. Hughes spoke until after they passed then Mrs. Hughes turned and at the same time Dickerson turned, and the two grinned at each other.

Hart Dean testified just before court adjourned that he was talking to a party of men about the murder, among whom was Ben Dickerson, and when it was mentioned that the authorities had sent for bloodhounds, Dickerson grew deathly pale and was noticeably nervous.

The attorneys for the state gave notice today that they would conclude their case next Wednesday night, and the defense will at once commence the fight for Dickerson's life.

Coshocton, March 17.—At 7:30 o'clock Friday evening the common pleas court of Coshocton county convened in special session for an investigation of the bribery charge made against Judge Roche, an attorney for the defense in the Ben Dickerson case by James Dobson, a witness for the state. Judge Eason called for the special session Friday afternoon, when the charge was made in the witness' testimony.

The state objected to the jury being present to hear this plea, and at this juncure Judge Eason fixed the time for the evening session. Judge Roche opened the session by saying: "About one week ago a local paper said in its headlines, 'State Springs a Great Sensation.' In the article it was intimated that counsel for defense would be accused of attempted bribery.

"I invoked the power of the court to have the newspaper man tell their authority for this information, and if it is laid at the door of the state, counsel for the defense will take action to maintain their honor and protect their interests.

"Since this case has been on trial I have received threatening letters, one of which I will read for the benefit of the court.

"'March 13.

"'Judge Roche: Dear Sir—You are to meet with personal violence and I take this means to warn you that you may be better able to protect yourself.

"'Yours truly,

"'George E. Rainsberger.'"

Prosecutor Glenn took up the cudgel for the state. He said counsel for the state had not given to the papers any facts that had come to their knowledge, but rather they had tried to avoid publicity.

Attorney McDowell next addressed the court. "We have not charged misconduct and we demand an explanation. I have been called an 'Irish Pup' and a 'Whelp.'" At his point Judge Roche arose to his feet and said, "That is a deliberate lie." The court gavel rapped.

Judge Eason said it was a challenge to fight. McDowell then appealed to the court. "At least a dozen people have come to me with the word, 'Irish Pup' since court closed this afternoon. I beg the court for protection. I want Rev. Rainesberger brought into this court and made to tell the authority for the information contained in that letter to Judge Roche."

Judge Eason made an eloquent appeal to counsel on both sides, which proved to be oil on troubled waters. Judge Eason said: "It is of the greatest importance to have publicity in legal decisions. There can be no secrets.

"Our greatest protection is to let the newspaper reporter have a full account. The bulk of the reporters want the truth and I will offer them every facility at my disposal. As a rule they are truthful and earnest and they shall have every convenience in my court.

Judge Eason thus proceeded to amicably adjust the difference between the attorneys. The real reason for the calling of the extra session hardly became apparent at any time during the wordy tilts between the attorneys. The reason for the calling of this session goes back to the testimony of James Dobson, given Friday afternoon, in which he stated, on direct examination, that Judge Roche had offered to pay him well if he could induce his daughter to change her way of thinking about the time she saw Ben Dickerson on the day of the murder. The extra session adjourned at 9 o'clock.

The three conversations related by James Dobson as having occurred between himself and Ben Dickerson loomed up portentiously in the state's evidence. The witness related the exact words of these conversations in a simple and direct way, and the testimony consisted mainly of lewd allegations on the part of the accused which were defamatory to the character of the murdered woman. This testimony, as admitted on the court records, probably has but few parallels in the history of state criminology, and perhaps has never had a parallel in a murder case.

EX-MAYOR CRUMBO RECOMMENDS PE-RU-NA.

"My Endorsement of Pe-ru-na Is Based On Its Merits."
—Ed. Crumbo.

ED. CRUMBO, Ex-Mayor of New Albany, Ind., writes from 511 E. Oak street:

"My endorsement of Peruna is based on its merits.

"If a man is sick he looks anxiously for something which will cure him, and Peruna will do the work.

"I know that it will cure catarrh of the head or stomach, indigestion, headache and any weary or sick feeling.

"It is bound to help anyone, if used according to directions.

"I also know dozens of men who speak in the highest terms of Peruna and have yet to hear of anyone being disappointed in it."

Mr. Crumbo, in a later letter, dated Aug. 25, 1904, says:

"My health is good, at present, but if I should have to take any more medicine I will fall back on Peruna."

Came Near Dying

Abscess on the Hip—Dreadful Suffering—Hospital Treatment Failed.

Another Great Cure by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Charles L. Hutchins is well known and popular in S. Royalton, Vt., being driver of the stage to and from Chelsea. He says of his boy Arthur, now 15, whose portrait appears below:

"He fell on the mill dam and injured his hip. An abscess developed and dreadful sickness followed. The doctors lanced the abscess and later performed an operation in the Mary Fletcher Hospital in Burlington. Arthur came near dying after the operation, but we got him home and neighbors said he would certainly die. In the spring I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, as usual, and gave Arthur a little each day. After a week or two there was a great change in the boy. He seemed hungry, and one day surprised us by exclaiming, 'How good my food tastes!' We could soon see the color coming into his face, as day by day he got better, seemed more lively and took more interest in things. "The sore is now entirely healed, there is no pain in hip or limb. Arthur goes to school every day and his health could not be better. To our friends his cure by Hood's Sarsaparilla seems miraculous."

Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, eliminates scrofulous tendencies, cures dyspepsia and kidney troubles, gives Sound Health, Restful Sleep. It creates good appetite, relieves all symptoms of dyspepsia, makes one feel better, look better, eat and sleep better.

SPECIAL.—To meet the wishes of those who prefer medicine in tablet form, we are now putting up Hood's Sarsaparilla in chocolate-coated tablets as well as in the usual liquid form. By reducing Hood's Sarsaparilla to a solid extract, we have retained in the tablets the curative properties of every medicinal ingredient except the alcohol. Of druggists, or mailed if your druggist does not have them. 100 doses $1. C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

MARSHAL IS PUT UNDER ARREST

Centerburg Man Charged With Unlawful Extortion of Money From F. E. Foster.

Centerburg, O., March 7.—Mr. L. D. Eaton, village marshal, has been placed under arrest, charged with unlawful extortion of money.

The affidavit was signed by F. E. Foster, and relates that while Clarence, son of F. E. Foster, was under arrest on December 15 1905, for creating a disturbance in a local restaurant, Evans sought to collect a debt from him. The father being very anxious to secure the release of the son from the custody of the marshal, it was proposed by Marshal Evans that if Foster would pay the amount of his claim, $15, he would release the boy without taking him before the mayor. This proposition Foster acceded to, paying five in money and giving a note for $10.

Attorney S Leamon represented the prosecution and W. O. Bowers the defence, before S. R. Best in justice's court.

The hearing was postponed until March 22.

Snow and Rain.

Fresno, Cal., March 17.—Telephone advices from Pine Ridge, which is at 5,000 feet altitude, say already over 12 feet of snow has fallen, and at the summit the depth is said to be over 22 feet. Both the Kings and the San Joaquin rivers are above the danger line. The residents of the Garfield vineyards district worked in a blinding rain building levees, but their work went for nothing when a huge overflow wave went sweeping through that district.

AMUSEMENTS

AUDITORIUM TONIGHT.

"The Wizard of Oz" and the famous adventures of the "Scare Crow" and the "Merry Tin Woodman" through the wondrous "Land of Nod" are tales familiar to all of us, big and little. Who among us has not followed them in their merry mythical wanderings? The "Scare Crow" and the "Merry Tin Woodman" have both been brought to real life in famous stage impersonations that are startlingly real. In "The King of Tramps," which is at the Auditorium this afternoon and evening, there is a young man, Mr. Clyde Long, whose stage portrayal and character make-up of the "Scare Crow" is said to be a little short of marvelous. Critics pronounce it as being a stage creation, beyond comparison, one that must be seen to be appreciated. In scare crow language he is described as being a person with a "stuffy, tired feeling, at times a little shaky on his pins. Some people take him for a man of straw, but he doesn't care a straw for that, and his wondrous broad smile is a sight to behold." The scare crow dance as done by Mr. Long is one of the hits of the show.

A MINISTER ON The Theater and the Church.

"The dramatic art is a legitimate art, and acting may be made an honorable profession, and the church should recognize the fact and use its influence to induce all good people to patronize the plays and encourage the players who give good entertainments, and stay away from the performances that minister to vice.

MISS OLGA VERNE
AS MARGUERITE

"There are immoral plays and plays that are as innocent as milk. There are bad men and bad women in all professions. The pulpit's vituperation of the theatrical profession is as unchristian as only a clergyman who never saw a good play would ever dream of making it. The stage seldom or never strikes back.

"The numerous scandals of the American clergymen now serving terms in the various penitentiaries of the land afford legitimate material for the stage. Those materials remain unused because the dramatist, the manager and the actor have too great a respect for religion to weaken it by emphasizing the sins of any of its professors.

"Water cannot rise higher than its source, and the character of the theater cannot be sustained above the character of those who attend. Playwrights and actors are not to blame for what we get on the stage. I want to fix the responsibility for the present order of plays where it belongs—upon the public. Let the people stay away from every performance, whatever its artistic excellence, if it abounds with intrigue and immorality. I mention this, owing to my being accosted by several of my congregation since my attendance of the production of 'Faust' at the Academy of Music last night, which was only a reiteration of my custom for the past fifteen years to attend a good play whenever the opportunity presented itself. I have never preached a sermon with a better moral effect than was given last night and can only say, God grant that there were more such plays."—Rev. Dr. Madison S. Peters.

Faust will be the attraction at the Auditorium Monday evening.

A LITERARY TREAT.

The last number on this year's Y. M. C. A. entertainment course will be a lecture by the famous lyceum orator, Geo. R. Wendling next Thursday evening, March 22. The committee has decided to ask Mr. Wendling to give his masterpiece, "The Man of Galilee" and in order that the largest possible number may hear him and receive the help and inspiration of the lecture the price of admission has been cut in two. For 25 cents any seat not reserved for the season can be secured for this lecture. There are about 200 seats left and it is the earnest hope of the committee that every seat will be sold. Seats will be put on sale at the Y. M. C. A. office Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

DOUGLAS HYDE and The GAELIC REVIVAL

By PATRICK SULLIVAN

Copyright, 1900, by American Press Association

THE spirit of Ireland is awakening. The denationalizing process has been halted. The old folklore, songs and patriotism are coming back together. At last the people of Erin have learned the lesson that the only way to bring about organic unity is by the cohesive force of an ideal, a sentiment. A mere political movement is only a body. That body must have a soul which is more than political. The soul for the present Irish movement is furnished by the revival of the Gaelic language and literature. The cry is "Ourselves alone!" not in any narrow or selfish sense, but in consonance with that inward law which provides that a man or a nation must develop along the lines of his or its own individuality and not along the lines of the individuality of some other man or nation. This is the lesson of liberty.

Outward conformity is inward atrophy. Self government is the best government because it requires one to bring out his own powers and capacities. One nation cannot impose its will on another nation without brutalizing itself and enfeebling its subject. All these things are involved, even though they may seem to be involved indirectly, in the Gaelic revival. Nothing so unites a people as its history, but what unifying force is there if the history is forgotten or buried in an unknown tongue? This study of the old sources creates a silent, invisible, elusive force, with which the mere clumsy weapons of an oppressive government cannot cope. It moves deeply, often unconsciously, but powerfully.

The present day is witnessing a veritable Irish renaissance, and, as every movement that means anything must do, it is affecting every plane of life. While in itself it has no political object, it is liable to have more far reaching political effects than anything Erin has known in a century. One would not imagine that the mere study of a dead language, or one nearly dead, would powerfully affect the industrial life of an entire nation, but the Gaelic revival has done nothing less than that. Before it began the Irish were buying most of their manufactured products from abroad. Now, with the new access of patriotism, they will have none but home manufactured goods, if it be possible to procure them. Factories that had been closed are reopening. An instance will illustrate this. A little match shop in Dublin in which the owner worked alone but a few years since now employs 800 people. The cry of an "Irish Ireland!" rings far and deep. It stirs a spirit almost dead and thus revives all that enters into the life of the nation—politics, industry, commerce, learning and, more than all, love of country. The wide-spreading effects from the Gaelic revival must be surprising even to the men who are behind the movement. They certainly have surprised everybody else. Yet great national transformations have started from smaller causes.

It is difficult to give tangible figures in connection with such an intangible movement, but the modern mind has developed so great a passion for statistics that nothing is considered complete unless it contains some rows of more or less inaccurate numerals. A sure way to stir pride in a Yankee is to quote him figures about the growth of something or other American. Political, financial and industrial literature simply bristles with statistics. If this tendency continues, it will be no very distant day when we shall think in digits instead of words. The orator thunders of millions and billions, the newspapers throw figures around recklessly, and even the poets no longer restrict themselves to one kind of numbers. This affection for digital literature is by no means confined to Americans, the English appetite for numerical guesswork being quite robust. Pardon this digression, but figures and Gaelic seem incongruous—a language contemporaneous with Greek and Latin, full of sweet old legends, musical with poetry and magic with mystery! And then, in its very presence, to lug in by the heels a bunch of statistics! But every one else has done it, and the spirit of the age demands it, so there is no escape.

Twelve years ago, when the Gaelic league was founded, the original Irish language was taught in less than a dozen schools; six years ago the number had increased to 105; today over 3,000 schools teach Gaelic. While the tongue of the fathers has been in constant use among a few of the peasants in the west and south of the island, there was practically no study devoted to it a dozen years ago. Now it is being studied by over a quarter of a million.

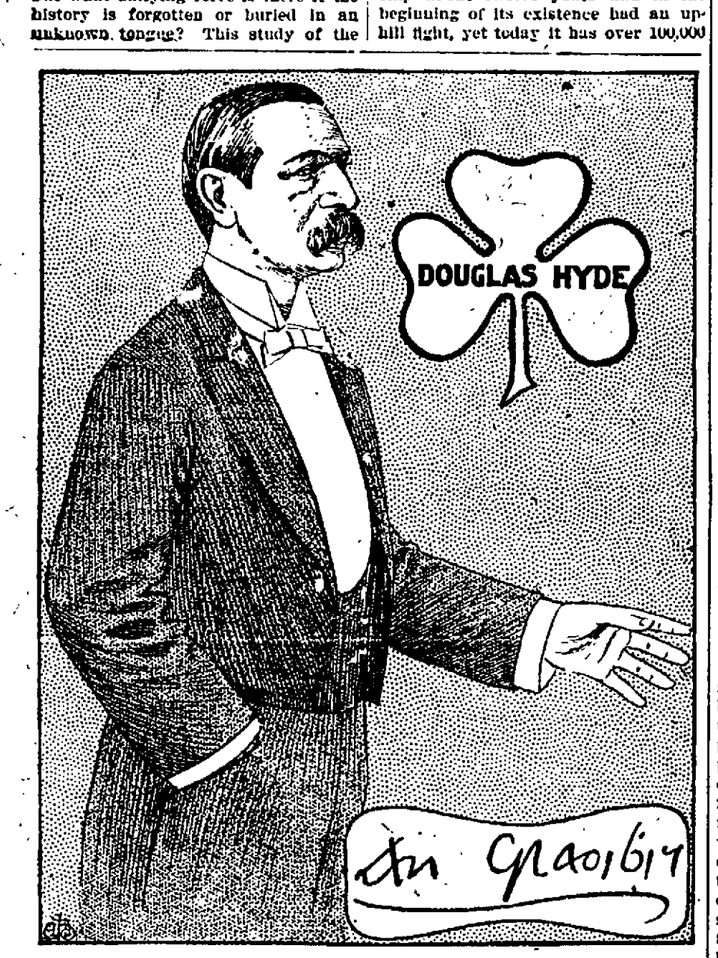

The Gaelic league has been organized only about twelve years and in the beginning of its existence had an uphill fight, yet today it has over 100,000 members, with branches in practically every great city in the world. For example, there are at least eight societies in New York and probably 25,000 persons who speak Gaelic; there are several of the leagues in Boston and Chicago and others in Philadelphia, Buffalo, Washington, San Francisco and other smaller cities throughout the United States and Canada. But those outside of Ireland are merely contributory to those on the old sod itself. There a revolution is in progress, and none the less a real revolution from the fact that it is in the thought world rather than the physical world. All classes of Irishmen are concerned in it, from peasant to peer and from scholar to unlettered workman. It has proved a great unifying force, having appealed alike to Protestant and Catholic, landlord and tenant, and men of all shades of political belief; it has furnished a common interest, a magnet to draw all Irishmen together; it has not only brought back the old speech, the old stories, the old songs, but has likewise revived the old dances, the music of old harps and bagpipes and, more than all, the old spirit. In the last century England had decreed that Gaelic should die. It was not taught in the schools, and children were punished for speaking it. Under these restrictions the ancient tongue was almost lost for two generations. It was like a flame that had nearly gone out, but just as it was flickering up for the last time a hand threw upon it new fuel and a mouth blew it back to new life.

Every great event in human development, every revolution, every religious or political or industrial movement, can be traced to some one man. Souls are the biggest things in the world, the only really vital and casual things, in fact. Every human event has some soul for its center. The Gaelic revival is not an accident. It did not come by chance; nothing does. It was brought into being by a man, as everything human is. God works through souls. The divine makes history, but makes it through God filled men and women. Outward things lie plastic to be molded and shaped by man. Creation is ready for him who comes in the divine image. Men are the live things in an inanimate world, the conscious things in a world of unconsciousness, the real things in a world of shadows. If you would find the soul of history, find it in great men.

The man in the Gaelic revival is Douglas Hyde. William Butler Yeats, the Irish poet and playwright, who is likewise a leader in the work, says this age in Erin will be known as the age of Hyde. It would perhaps not be too much to say that Hyde is the most popular man since Parnell, and this notwithstanding the fact that he is a Protestant. As president of the Gaelic league ever since its inception he has been warmly supported in his work by Catholic priests and has been as ardently seconded by Protestant Orangemen.

Dr. Hyde is still a young man, only in the forties, and the best of his life should be still before him. He is a ripe scholar, an orator, a poet, a playwright and a leader of men. He went among the plain people to carry on his crusade for the Gaelic renaissance, feeling that the mere support of scholars was not enough. Nor did he have the scholars with him. Many of them shrugged their shoulders; many others openly discouraged the movement. Gaelic was taught in none of even the Irish colleges. A professor in one of the Dublin universities once asked a fellow professor, "What is Gaelic?" "A language made up of shockingly spelled adjectives," was the reply. That was the attitude of culture. But the masses responded more readily. Every reform that means anything comes from the bottom. It is surprising that on a question so purely scholastic as this the impulse to push the movement forward should come from the so called uncultured classes. But the hearts of the plain folks are true and respond to every true cause.

Douglas Hyde has made his appeal to them, and as a result he has given Erin a new ideal and dream, has reunited the people, has opened the storehouse of a rich and ancient literature and, in a word, has helped the Irish nation to find itself.

Legends of St. Patrick.

At Sabhal, it is said, "an evil one, a bondsman of Satan," thrust a stick through a church window and overturned a chalice the saint was using "But the Lord," says the legend impressively, "instantly and terribly avenged this fearful wickedness and in a new and unheard of manner destroyed the impious man, for the earth opened, swallowed up this magician, and he descended alive into hell."

Among the apostle's converts was a swine herder named Mochua. "And while sitting together they conversed on holy things. A staff sent from heaven fell between them, and the head thereof rested on the bosom of St. Patrick and the point on the bosom of Mochua," which the holy man insisted was a sign from on high that the new convert should become a preacher. "And the staff is in the church still preserved and is called by the Irish 'the flying staff.'"

Storms Affect Spring Trade.

New York, March 17.—Bradstreet's says: The widespread winter storm has delayed the opening of spring trade at retail, causing some complaint of bad roads and interruption to personal buying at leading jobbing centers. On the other hand, the benefits of accompanying heavy snows or rains to the crops probably far outweigh the damage due to this cause, or injury caused to small fruit and truck interests by the freezing weather. Wholesale trade and industry show no signs of hesitation, and even the building trades have given little heed to the temporary weather set back. The coal strike situation is still a flaw in the situation, but signs of the conflict being localized are seen and a general suspension of all work is scouted. Jobbing trade at leading centers is large, and orders for spring delivery are already reported at western centers; railway earnings for February and the first half of March break all records for this season.

Conference Postponed.

Algeciras, March 17.—Postponement of the plenary conference on Moroccan reforms until March 20 arouses among the delegates hopes that Germany and France meantime will reach a basis of accord. The symptoms of agreement are more favorable. The representatives of neutral nations energetically endeavored to influence mutual concessions. The French and Spanish delegates, however, still claim that their acceptance of the principle of inspection of Franco-Spanish police gives an efficacious guarantee that the interests of the powers will be properly safeguarded. They are disinclined to agree that the inspector to be appointed shall have anything in the nature of a command, which the Germans hitherto regarded as essential. Both sides now appear to be less uncompromising. It is the opinion of influential delegates, including the Americans and Italians, that an agreement is attainable.

Coal Deal.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 17.—The Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke company has taken over the property interests and good will of the People's Coal company, and the C. W. Jutte Coal company at a valuation estimated at about $5,500,000. The Jutte coal property is the most extensive of any independent river concern shipping coal south. The company owns docks at New Orleans and has landings and coal yards in almost every important point. The coal boats, flats and barges are valued at $500,000. The most expensive item in the assets is the coal docks and river landings. These are estimated at $2,000,000.

STATE AND NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS

More About Turnpike Deal.

Cincinnati, O., March 17.—Additional testimony was offered before the senate Lexow committee regarding the turnpike deal. George Laugel, president of the Clough Turnpike company, testified that he had refused to sell Attorney Charles Dolle six miles of the Clough turnpike at $1,750 a mile, saying he would prefer to sell direct to the county commissioners and thus save the taxpayers the difference between $1,750 and $5,000 a mile, the latter being the figure at which Dolle would dispose of the pike to the county commissioners. "Dolle then told me," concluded the witness, "that if I didn't sell to him the county commissioners would never buy my pike. He was right, because I never sold it."

Alleged Member of James Gang.

Findlay, O., March 17.—In the divorce suit of Alfred Duncan against Jennie Duncan, the defendant took the witness stand and declared that her husband, about a year ago, while he was desperately ill, confessed to her that he had been a member of the Jesse James gang. She said that he told her that he was Frank Shoemaker and that Duncan was an assumed name. Mrs. Duncan also told on the witness stand that he detailed to her how the James boys committed many robberies and how he shared in the division of the booty. Duncan is 68 years old and a pensioner.

Drys Win at Wooster.

Wooster, O., March 17.—The voters of this city decided by a majority of 118 that the saloons must go. The vote was: Wets, 736; drys, 854. The drys made surprising gains over the election of two years ago in all of the wards but one. In this ward, the Second, where the greater number of college people reside, the majority for the drys was smaller than was expected. The wets claim that they lost because fully 100 students of Wooster university were permitted to vote, and also by reason of the superior organization of the dry managers.

Reports Illegal Fees.

Washington C. H., O., March 17.—A copy of the report of E. A. Dover, state examiner under the bureau of uniform public accounting, was filed with the auditor and prosecuting attorney. Mr. Dover finds that overdrafts aggregating $4,299.94 have been made on the Fayette county treasury during the two years covered by his examination. He charges the present county officials, their predecessors, newspapers and individuals with this sum.

Mine Still Burning.

Bridgeport, O., March 17.—The fire in the Barton mine of Youghiogheny and Ohio Coal company in Belmont county is still raging. If it is not soon checked the damage will be the heaviest ever caused in a mine in Ohio. Officials of the company are here directing the work of skilled men in an effort to check the flames, but the heat and deadly fumes from the fire put the men in great danger of being overcome. It is believed the fire is the work of an incendiary.

Result of a Blunder.

Tiffin, O., March 17.—A jury in Judge Schroth's court has rendered a verdict of not guilty in the case of Frank P. Sherman, former county infirmary director, who was charged with selling hay and hides and keeping $49.63, the proceeds. It was proved that Sherman paid the money into the treasury five days after collecting it, and the indictment was the result of a blunder of a state examiner, who had inspected his books.

Haugh Denied New Trial.

Dayton, O., March 17.—Dr. Oliver Crooke Haugh, convicted of murder in the first degree, was refused a new trial by Judge Brown of the common pleas court. Haugh is charged with murdering his father, mother and brother, giving them a deadly drug and burning them up in their own home. Sentence has not yet been passed, but it is not thought a higher court will be appealed to.

Pioneer Missing.

St. Marys, O., March 17.—Fred Bucholz, one of the most popular pioneer citizens of this place, who has been missing since Thursday, March 8, has not been found. He had just drawn his pension money and it is now thought that he was probably robbed if not killed, and his body hidden. The water will be let out of the Miami and Erie canal in search of his body.

Grand Jury to Investigate.

Cincinnati, O., March 17.—The Hamilton county grand jury will be called together Tuesday to take up the matter of the alleged shortage, which is said to exist in the county treasury by reason of Treasurer Rud K. Hynicka allowing the banks to use money represented by checks sent to them for collection.

Vory's Report.

Columbus, O., March 17.—Insurance Commissioner Vorys recommends to Governor Pattison in his annual report the enactment of a general anti-trust law applicable to the combination of insurance agents for the fixing of arbitrary fire insurance rates, and the repeal of the anti-compact provision of section 3659 of the revised statutes, which by prohibiting companies from requiring their agents to take such action, is held by the commissioner to raise the implication that agents may voluntarily so combine.

Buckeye Horseman.

Springfield, O., March 17.—James Clark, 67, one of the best known horsemen in Ohio, was found dead in bed. He had taken an overdose of chloroform to ease pain, having suffered from paralysis. He sold Fannie Foley, 2:11¼, to John D. Rockefeller a few years ago for $5,500.

WASHING WITHOUT WATER

Is Like Trying to Get Rid of Dandruff Without Herpicide.

Did you ever see any one trying to wash themselves without soap or water?

If you did what would you say of him?

It is every bit as foolish to try to get rid of Dandruff and to prevent Baldness by feeding the germs which cause it, with Canthrarides, Vaseline, Glycerine and similar substances which form the principal ingredients of most so-called Hair Vigors.

Newbro's Herpicide is successful because it attacks and kills the parasitic germ which feeds on the hair roots.

It is the original and only genuine scalp germicide manufactured.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co. Detroit, Mich.

Spencer Fairall Makes a Justice of the Peace Defendant in Suit in Probate Court.

Spencer Fairall, by his attorneys, Smythe & Smythe, has commenced suit in the Common Pleas court against Florence Amspaugh, Jacob Amspaugh and Albert N. Holmes.

Plaintiff says that on March 12, 1906, he was arrested on a warrant issued by Albert N. Holman, justice of the peace of Perry township, Licking county, on a paterity charge by Florence Amspaugh; that the justice represented to him that notwithstanding the fact that he denied he was the father of the child, he had better settle with her and Jacob Amspaugh by paying to them $190 for the reason that the girl was under 16 years of age, and that her oath would convict him of criminal assault, and that if he would make such settlement he would not be prosecuted.

Plaintiff says that he was under arrest without any friend near to advise him, and being frightened by such representations and the situation he was in, was coerced into signing his name to five promissory notes which had been written by the justice of the peace, aggregating $400, payable to Jacob Amspaugh or order.

Plaintiff says that the testimony of Florence Amspaugh was false, and that Jacob Amspaugh and Florence Amspaugh conspired together for the purpose of extorting money from him, and by conspiracy and arrest they extorted from him the promissory notes, threatening him with the charge of criminal assault in case he failed to do so.

Plaintiff says that by arrangement between the other two defendants and Albert N. Holman, the notes were left in the custody of Holman, to be by him collected or sold.

Plaintiff says he believes the defendants are about to sell the notes to innocent purchasers, so as to prevent him from setting up against the same the facts mentioned, and that they will do so unless prevented by the interposition of the court; that the defendants are insolvent and that he will sustain irreparable injury should the notes pass into the hands of innocent purchasers before they become due.

Plaintiff prays that the defendants be enjoined from collecting the notes and from selling or disposing of them, and that they be ordered to deliver them to plaintiff to be cancelled and that they be cancelled. The injunction as prayed for, was allowed by the Probate court.

Alleges Extreme Cruelty.

Julia F. Haynes has commenced suit in the Probate court for divorce from Benjamin L. Haynes. The plaintiff says she was married to the defendant June 14, 1890, and that no children were born of the marriage. She charges her husband with extreme cruelty in striking and beating her, and that he threatened to kill her. She also charges him with driving her away from the house, compelling her to remain away for hours at a time. She says her husband is a habitual drunkard and fears that he will kill her. An injunction was issued by the Probate court restraining him from interfering or molesting his wife in any manner, or in the possession and control of her property. John W. Deidigh, attorney for the plaintiff.

The case of Harry H. Elwinger vs. Village of Hebron, et al, was called in Common Pleas court this morning and was set for hearing Saturday next. Loan Association vs. Bank.

George P. Webb as receiver of the Homestead Building Association, has commenced suit in the Common Pleas court against A. A. Stasel, receiver of the Newark Savings Bank company and James F. Lingafelter to recover $1155.72 alleged to be due the Homestead Building Association company, on a loan given to Daisy D. Stevenson on property owned by her in Newark. Plaintiff asks the court to decree that the plaintiff company is the real owner and beneficiary of the certificate; that neither of the defendants are entitled to possession of the same; that James F. Lingafelter has no right, title or interest in it and that the receiver be ordered to deliver and surrender the certificate to him, and for all other proper relief.

Suit for Damages.

The case of James Farrabee vs. The City of Newark, James E. Rose and Bailey & Keeley, suit for $300 damages, was called in Justice J. R. Atcherley's court Saturday afternoon. Plaintiff claims that as he was driving along the road in the night time his horse ran into a pile of sand that had been left in the road in front of a new business house that was being built by Messrs. Bailey & Keeley; that his buggy was overturned and badly damaged and that he was severely injured.

J. B. MOORE CASE HEARD FRIDAY

AND JUSTICE WILLIAM OF MADISON TOWNSHIP RESERVED HIS DECISION.

Until Next Tuesday — Defendant's Attorney Argued He Made No Attempt at Forgery.

The case which J. F. Lingafelter brought against John B. Moore, charging him with forgery came up for hearing before Squire Eli Williams at the township house, in Madison township Friday. The trial progressed until it came to that point in which the evidence of Lingafelter as to the check was arrived at, when Edward Kibler, counsel for the defendant, objected on the ground that the check was executed by Moore as the agent of Lingafelter, and showed on its face that it had been signed by Moore, and not by Lingafelter, because it was in Moore's handwriting and the name of Lingafelter was followed by the initial of Moore, who signed his name. That therefore it did not only not purport to have been signed by Lingafelter, but showed on its face that it was not his signature, which question was argued at length. Squire Williams deeming that this matter was of vital importance took the matter under advisement and adjourned the case until Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

And Goes Back To Her Mother In Princeton, Ind.—Young Woman Is Only Nineteen.

Utica O March 17.—The Herald says. The mayor and the marshal were called out at 3 o'clock Sunday morning to protect a young married woman, who was being abused by her drunken husband. The husband was arrested and placed in the lockup. On Monday the life disposed of what few household effects she had, and left for her mother's home at Princeton, Ind. Only about two weeks previous the woman was so abused by her husband that she went to the house of a neighbor, the Rev. Mr. Gay, in the night, for protection. At that time the husband was jailed for a few days. The woman, who, being married three years, is yet but 19 years of age, has the sympathy of all who knew of these painful circumstances. She has one child, five months old. The family is named Donavin, and they lived in a part of Walter Rails' dwelling.

EAGLES DAY NEXT TUESDAY

THE AFFAIR PLANNED WILL BE ONE OF THE BIGGEST Ever Held In Ohio By a Secret Society—Over Two Hundred Candidates To Be Initiated.

Tuesday, March 20, will be a red letter occasion in the history of the Fraternal Order of Eagles of this city, for on that occasion one of the largest events that has taken place in secret orders in Ohio for some time, will be held under the auspices of Licking Aerie. No. 387. Licking Aerie will be assisted by the strong initiating team of Zanesville. The class for initiation has grown so rapidly that the original number of 100 has been increased to 200. Fifty applications are in the hands of the worthy secretary to be balloted on at a special meeting to be held on Monday evening. The spacious hall of the Aerie on West Main street has been found too small to accommdoate the immense crowd that will be present on Tuesday, and the Castle Hall, of Newark Lodge. No. 13, Knights of Pythias, has been secured, in which a class of 100 will be initiated. The work will be put on in this hall by the crack Zanesville team, which won great praise last year at Denver, Colo., for its fine work before the Grand Aerie.

Over in the hall of Licking Aerie, on West Main street, the remaining 100 candidates will receive the degree work at the hands of Columbus and Newark teams.

No other fraternal organization contains among its members so many great men as does the Fraternal Order of Eagles. Nearly every United States senator and congressman from the Western states are members and are now, or have been, a presiding officer of their respective Aeries.

President Theodore Roosevelt is one of the charter members of Cheyenne Aerie, and holds a life membership certificate. He received the work in full while Vice President of the United States.

Past Worthy President George Hamilton is in receipt of an acknowledgment of the invitation extended President Roosevelt to be present on March 20, in which he expresses his regret and inability to break away from congress to participate in the Eagles big event in Newark. The letter will be framed and hung in the hall of Licking Aerie as a memento of this great occasion.

John Kiefer and Joseph Kuster, Jr., promise the greatest banquet ever served outside of New York City. Tables will be beautifully decorated with cut flowers and lighted by candles, the A. H. Heisey company kindly furnishing all glassware for this occasion, gratis. The Aerie has secured permission from the city council to erect a furnace in front of their hall and a 1400-pound ox will be roasted. Everything has been done to make the repast one of the finest ever served at a gathering of this kind.

The Zanesville Aerie has chartered two special cars on the Columbus-Zanesville interurban and these will be crowded with Eagles to attend the affair. Columbus is to send five interurban cars loaded with Eagles also, and members of the degree teams of Columbus, Zanesville and this city will do the work.

ELECTRIC DISPLAY. Graef Bros.' Music Hall Cafe has the finest electric display on their sideboard ever seen in the city. It was put in by the Newark Electric Co. of 37 S. Second street. 3-6-d2t

A HUMAN COOK STOVE

The stomach is the cook stove of the body.

It prepares—digests—the body's food, and when the stomach gets out of order the body's food is poorly digested.

Now your body doesn't like to absorb poorly digested food any more than you like to eat poorly cooked food—and just like you it complains.

Well—the body's complaint is called dyspepsia, indigestion, catarrh of the stomach, stomach trouble.

HOW URIC ACID CAUSES STOMACH TROUBLE.

Most people take better care of their stoves than they do of their stomachs.

Why? Because they don't put too much fuel in the stoves—but they do put too much food in their stomachs.

And when they do—this is what happens. Too much food or too much cold food or food that is too hot or spoiled—bad fuel—causes what your physician calls congestion.

He means that the little blood vessels in the walls of the stomach have been squeezed together so that the blood can't get through.

Now this blood is hard at work—it is busy carrying away that part of the body's ashes, called uric acid.

Naturally when it finds these blood vessels closed—the blood does just what you would do—lays down the load that it is carrying, uric acid.

This poison thus collects in the stomach's blood vessels just like soot collects in the stove pipe or chimney—and you have stomach trouble, dyspepsia, etc.

HOW LIFE PLANT TAKES OUT URIC ACID

When a stove gets clogged with ashes—or the chimney with soot—it's very plain that it must be cleaned out—isn't it?

Well, when part of the body's ashes—uric acid—collects in the blood vessels of the stomach, it must be cleaned out too. And Nature has provided a way.

A preparation of seven herbs and roots, called LIFE PLANT, dissolves uric acid, turns it into a liquid like water, so the blood can carry it out of the stomach.

LIFE PLANT purifies the blood—enables it to heal the stomach—helps it to digest the food properly and drives all poisonous waste matter out of the system.

LIFE PLANT is not a patent medicine—contains no narcotics—no drugs. It is a harmless, natural solvent for uric acid.

Many people suffering with chronic stomach trouble—in its worst form, have been cured by LIFE PLANT. Write us for information of these cures.

URIC ACID SYMPTOMS

Biliousness, poor digestion, headache, sluggish brain, sleeplessness, palpitation, darting pains, dry skin, shortness of breath, dark colored urine, and in women, menstrual disorders.

The above symptoms are the beginning of serious illness. If you have any of them—don't delay—take LIFE PLANT at once. If disease has already come upon you—take LIFE PLANT. LIFE PLANT cures in the common sense way by removing the cause of the disease.

THE NEWARK ADVOCATE

Second Section

VOLUME 35—NUMBER 39. NEWARK, OHIO, SATURDAY EVENING, MARCH 17, 1906. TEN CENTS A WEEK.

SOME INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT NEWARK POST OFFICE

Receipts Have More Than Doubled in Past Eight Years---Over $30,0000 Sent Out in Money Order Office, $25,000 of Which Goes to Foreign Countries.

Apropos of the talk about Newark's proposed government building, a little side light on the Newark postoffice, its growth and the present conditions will be of great interest. With this end in view, a reporter for The Advocate called at the office and from Assistant Postmaster Seigfried many interesting points were gleaned of the manner in which Newark's people are given their daily mail.

It is needless to say that the operation of the postoffice department of this government are as wonderful as they are extensive. It is a well-known fact that the United States gives its citizens the best postal service of any of the nations of the world. For less money an American citizen is able to send letters and packages further and quicker than in any other country.

Newark is no exception to the rule. The local postoffice is very much crowded and in spite of this fact, Newark people are getting excellent postal service. This service can be improved only by the erection of a new government building large enough and with accommodations enough to facilitate the handling of the incoming and outgoing mail.

Is New Building Needed?

This question is easiest answered by the following table of receipts of the Newark postoffice for each year during the past eight years. The postoffice has occupied the present quarters for nearly ten years and it has been in that locality for nearly a quarter of a century. The receipts for each year are as follows:

1898	$19,369 28
1899	21,096 08
1900	22,891 19
1901	26,220 99
1902	29,633 16
1903	33,152 10
1904	35,244 26
1905	44,948 35

It will be seen by the above table that the increase of the year of 1905 over the preceeding year was nearly $10,000.00, the greatest increase since the postoffice has been established in this city. This increase has been made in the present quarters. The receipts have more than doubled during the time that the office has been located in the present room, and therefore, the amount of business transacted is twice as great. This is adequate reason why Newark should have a new government building.

The report of the postoffice inspector for the year of 1905 places the Newark office in the first-class and second grade. Any office whose receipts are more than $40,000 is called a first-class office. Newark is now the same as Zanesville as far as the postoffice classification goes.

The above receipts are for stamps, stamped envelopes and postal cards, newspaper postage and box rent. This does not include money realized from the sale of mon yeorders at the money order window.

Newark's Letter Carriers.

Did you ever stop to ask yourself the question, how many men are required to carry the mail in Newark every day? It requires just sixteen men with four substitute carriers to deliver the mail in the city limits each day. The force was increased last October to this number, there being formerly twelve men on the regular force. At present there is but one substitute on duty but three more will be appointed within a few days. A number of men recently took the examination for this position and after they have served as substitutes for some time, they are elegible to appointment on the regular force in case of a vacancy or an increase in the number of carriers.

The Eight-Hour Rule.

These carriers are all working under the eight-hour rule, which is an edict from the postmaster general's office at Washington, which orders all carriers not to be absent from the office more than eight hours. This may seem a peculiar rule, but nevertheless it is a real one and a good one. This is the only way in which the government can ascertain the number of carriers required and in this way it can be easily done.

If the carriers are not permitted to remain away from the office longer than eight hours and they return with a bag full of mail which they have been unable to deliver, it is known that their route is too long and that another carrier is needed. A carrier who breaks this rule may be severely dealt with. The first offense calls for a reprimand, the second, a suspension of one day, and for the third, in danger of being removed from the service. Of course, the carrier's reason may be sufficient to lighten this punishment, but there are few who violate it. Every minute of delay must be explained to the department.

The Rural Routes.

There are nine rural routes running out of Newark. The routes are numbered from one to nine and their carriers are as follows, named in the order of their number: J. N. Lake, Sylvanus Jones, Benjamin S. Marshall, George N. Dodson, Henry O. Dorsey, Clyde W. Irwin, John F. Halley, W. A. Richards, John I. Smith. These men are governed by an eight-hour rule, but it is not enforced as strictly as among the city carriers as the rural men are more likely to be delayed by weather conditions. These men have routes which will average 25 miles in extent. The carriers report at the office at 7 a. m., and spend an hour sorting mail and start on their journey at 8 o'clock. They are scheduled to report at 4 p. m. again.

The Office Force.

It requires the labor of ten clerks to handle the mails and transact the business of the postoffice in Newark. There is the stamp clerk, the registry clerk and the money order clerk whom the general public meet face to face every day. The other seven are like the miners in Siberia, only the employes of the postoffice see the out of door sunlight long enough each day to get their meals. The seven are hard at work sorting mail in the rear of the lobby. They put your letter or package in the proper mail bag to dispatch it to its destination. They sort the incoming mail and place it where your carrier can get it handily and bring it to your door.

One of these men works nearly all night. He goes on duty at 7 oclock in the evening and leaves the office about three in the morning. It is his duty to sort all mail coming into the office after 7 o'clock. He prepares it for the outgoing night trains and sorts the mail received from these trains in order to avoid an accumulation of mail during the night. The night clerk is Thomas Tower.

Problem of the Foreigner.

"Newark's foreign population is the toughest proposition we have to deal with here," said Mr. Seigfried to the news man. "It's getting worse every day too. We are getting so we can handle it pretty well, though, as we are becoming familiar with the names of the places to which the matter is addressed."

The foreigner transacts most of his business at the money order window, and very few of these come to have orders cashed which come from the Old Country. There was $285,000, approximately, passed through the hands of the money order clerks here last year. This is exclusive of the foreign orders. With this it will amount to more than $300,000, nearly $25,000 being sent out of the city to Italy and Hungary. Most of this money was sent to Hungary. Miss Anna Sheridan, the efficient money order clerk has been at the window long enough to become familiar with the names of the places to which most of the money is sent. She experiences but little trouble and when she meets with any foriger whom she cannot handle, she sends him for an interpreter and the problem is solved. The "Hunkie" comes in and is mystified by the manner in which his money is transported to his loved ones in his dear old home land. Assistant Postmaster Siegfried is at this window for an hour and a half at noon, so he frequently has these problems to wrestle with, but he too is rapidly learning to talk the "dago" lingo.

The Postoffice Pay Roll.

Aside from the salary of the postmaster and his assistant, the Newark postoffice pays out almost $26,000 in salaries every year. It is $25,945.68 exclusive of the postmaster's salary and his assistant. With these the pay roll will reach $30,000 or more. All these salaries besides all the other expenses of the office are paid out of the receipts. The ten clerks, the sixteen city carriers and the rural carriers and substitutes with four railway mail clerks are on the pay roll. When all the expenses of the local office are paid out of the receipts, the balance is forwarded to the postoffice department at Washington. The local office is more than self-sustaining.

The Government Inspector.

There is a man who calls with an astonishing irregularity at the local office, and in fact at all postoffices. He is generally on hand in the morning when the postmaster or his assistant arrives. He asks a few pointed questions, some of them seemingly impertinent, asks where the funds are and about the condition of the books and then orders the safe opened. He takes absolute charge and straightens up the matters in short order. These men are expert accountants and Sherlock Holmes detectives all wrapped up in one little bundle. They are on the lookout to see that Uncle Sam's funds are being handled in a straightforward manner.

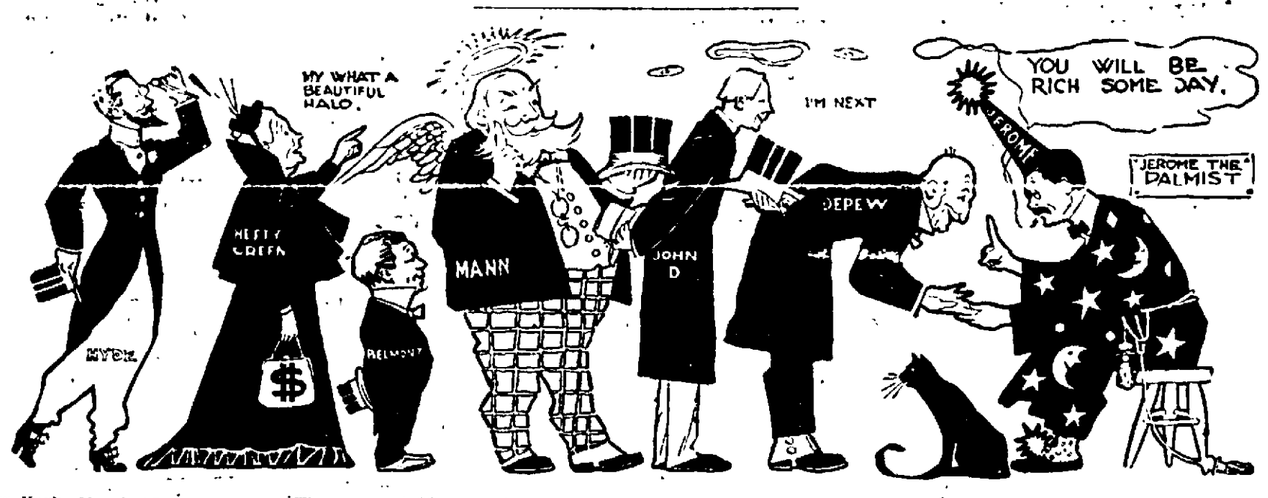

Hours of Collection.

At the time when the city carrier force consisted of but twelve men, there was a scheduled time for the collection of the mails about the city. This was printed on cards and posted on the front of the boxes. It soon became impossible for the carriers to make the collections according to the schedule and the cards were removed. Now that the force has been increased this schedule will be made out again and the citizens can tell at what hour the collections will be made at the various letter boxes.

This would have been done before but since the four new carriers were added several new routes have been made out and several changes made. As soon as the new order of things has assumed a reliable regularity the cards will be posted showing the hours of collections. Many citizens have wondered why this notice was not posted before but they have wondered why this notice was set the matter aright. The present postmaster and those in charge of the affairs here are making every effort to give the public the best service ob-

WITH BROAD GRIN, AT HOT-AREO CLUB, CARNEGIE OPENS LAUGHING AMERICAN MILLIONAIRES' ASSOCIATION.

New York, March 17 – The fourth annual convention of Laughing American Millionaires was opened with a broad grin today by "Andy" Carnegie in the grand banquet room of the Hot-Aero Club. Minutes of the last meeting were sung by Chauncey M. Depew amid screams of joy. Mr. Harriman reported under the head of new criminal business that since the last meeting somebody has been monkeying with the sub-committee on insurance jokes, of which James Hazen Hyde was formerly the prodigal chairman.

Colonel Mann asked to be put on the "Old Gag" Committee, from which Senator Depew declined to resign. Thomas F. Ryan told a funny story about riding down town to work last Sunday without paying his street car fare.

Judge Deuel moved that the conductor who refused, or even neglected, to collect Mr. Ryan's fare be arraigned before him shortly after the Supreme Court passes on his case.

President Carnegie chided Mr. Gould a bit about having seven children. This made Charles F. Murphy laugh and he was put on the Ballot Reform Committee. William K .Vanderbilt, Jr., came in to the convention a little late and offered a basket of Motor Laughs. They were laid on the floor, and Andrew Hamilton was asked to take them up to Allaw and see if he could not have them incorporated in the next good roads bill.

Young Rockefeller sang a song entitled, "Father and Mother Were Well Acquainted." It was a scream, and for a chaser, he received "The Old Empty Oil Can." Young Waldorf-Astor sent a souvenir postal from England saying he was sorry he could not attend the fourth annual convention and announced his forthcoming marriage.

A resolution was passed asking John D. Rockefeller if he was going to set a match to the Standard Oil Company just in order to go down in history as the man who made the biggest bonfire.

H. H. Rogers sent a letter of regret. He said nothing would give him greater pleasure than to attend the fourth annual laugh of his jolly pals, but he had to attend the funeral of a faithful subpoena server, who died chasing him all over the world.

Hetty Green applied for membership on the Skirt Dancing Committee, but she was turned down on account of her age.

This reference to the ages of the only living laughing millionaires made Russell Sage very happy, and he laughed so hard that Hetty had to carry him out before he fainted.

A panic was narrowly averted by her presence of mind, and as soon as quiet was restored and all the millionaires checked their hysterics Mr. Belmont entered with President Darlington, of the Board of Helath, and the entire convention was taken on a tour of the subway, in order, to show the merry millionaires that the city of New York is not suffering from the smoke nuisance, as President Roosevelt supposed.

In the evening the Laughing Millionaires were taken to see Mr. Brady's Redskins. They thought Mr. Brady was a fine critic and the show a big joke. After the show they all went and had their fortunes told by Jerome, the palmist, and he said every one of them would be a rich man some day.

Then they were weighed, John W. Gate bro e he scales.

Russel Sage was a surprise. John D. said he'd bet Russell had his pockets filled with feathers or he wouldn't ever weigh so little. He was searched, and two toy balloons were found under his vest.

"Now, we know," said Mr. Carnegie, "what makes 'Russ' so light on his feet."

After taking a light luncheon in a dairy the convention came to a close amid the wildest scenes of joy and laughter. It was agreed that Mr. Carnegie did right in abolishing the long faced, sour-hearted American millionaire and introducing the big, jovial, all-soul, good, happy man who gives up his money to the poor and steals from the rich.

THREE FIREMEN KILLED WHEN ROOF COLLAPSED

And Nine Others Were Seriously Injured at a Fire In Camden, New Jersey.

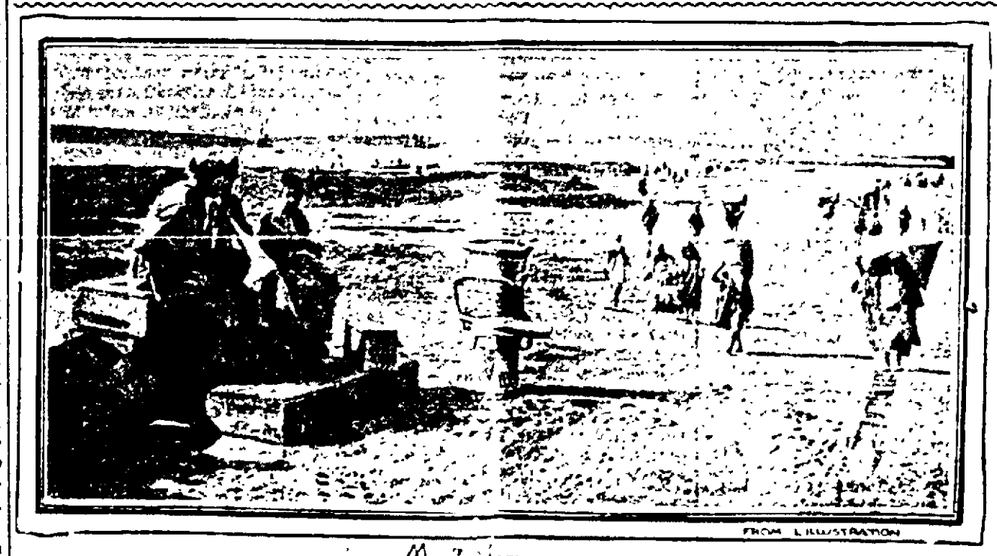

Camden, N. J., March 17.—Three firemen were killed and nine others seriously injured at a fire which destroyed the old Sixth regiment armory in this city. The dead: George W. Shields, William Hillman, William Jobes. The fire started in the boiler room of the armory building and quickly spread to all parts of the structure. About a dozen firemen were ordered into the burning building with hose and were making good progress in fighting the flames when they were warned that the roof was giving way. Before they could heed the warning the great expanse of roof fell. Shields, Hillman and Jobes were crushed to death, but the others managed to follow the line of hose and escaped after being most seriously burned and almost suffocated. The loss will be about $75,000

PROPOSED CODE AMENDMENTS

Columbus, O., March 17 – The bill that has been ripped open wider than any other at this session is the new code bill indorsed by the mayors' convention in this city at the instance of Mayor Johnson. The parents of the original bill would hardly know it as it comes from the house committee on cities. It provides that the powers of mayors shall be greatly amplified, but nearly all the things asked for by Mayor Johnson are striken out. Under the bill, boards of public safety and public service are abolished and the mayor is given authority to name directors for each branch of the service. Those directors, with the mayor, will constitute a board of control having power to make expenditures not exceeding $500. The attempt to have the mayor appoint the city solicitor failed. The board of health is to remain an independent department, the vice-mayor remains elective, municipal ownership does not appear in the bill as reported in any form, no change is made in existing street railway franchise laws and various other provisions contained in the original bill are conspicuous by their absence in the pending measure. It is provided that the law if enacted shall not go into effect until next year, in order that officers now serving will not be disturbed

British Steamer Ashore.

Atlantic City, N. J., March 17.—The British steamer Cearense from Para for New York, struck on the shoals near Tom's River life saving station and lies fast in the sand. The steamer had 13 passengers in the cabin list and 25 in the steerage. All the passengers were brought safely ashore in the life boat of the Tom's River life saving station. The Cearense had on board a large cargo of rubber from Brazil and of sugar from the Barbadoes.

ARREST CASHIER FOR SHORTAGE AND CLOSED BANK

Prominent Lawyer Also Arrested For Conspiracy In Wreck of a Pennsylvania Institution.

Hazleton, Pa., March 17.—F. H. Everett, cashier of the First National bank of Freeland, was arrested here on the charge of embezzling $56,900 from the institution. William Beckley, a lawyer of Bloomsburg, was arrested at about the same time on the charge of conspiracy. Both warrants were sworn out by A. Oswald, president of the bank, before United States Commissioner C. F. Hill of this city, who committed the accused men without bail for a further hearing. Beckley, when searched in his cell, had in his possession fifteen notes of $5,000 each from the Pennsylvania paper mills of Catawissa, drawn on the First National bank of Catawissa. Everett and Beckley claim the money was sunk in the Pennsylvania paper mills of Catawissa. The capital stock of the bank is $50,000.

PARKER URGES SOUTH TO LEAD

The Only Hope of Democratic Party, He Says, Lies There

MUST UNDERTAKE DUTIES

AND ASSUME A LEADERSHIP THAT WILL MEAN VICTORY

The Eminent New Yorker Says That In Politics Only Has the South Been a Laggard.

Charlotte, N. C., March 17.—Judge Alton B. Parker, of New York, Democratic candidate for president in the last election, in an address before the Manufacturers' club of this city, urged southern Democrats to take the leadership of the party. Judge Parker spent a few hours here enroute home from Mississippi and his speech was delivered at a reception given in his honor. The judge said: "During all its history, the Democratic party has denounced the lodgment of undue power in the government. The people of the south, without variableness, or shadow of turning, have been its main stay. Shirking no responsibility, seeking no national rewards, promoting no special inferests, they have neither been truculent in victory nor discouraged in defeat. But the time has come when new duties and responsibilities must be undertaken by the Democrats of the south."

Judge Parker continued: "Until the Democrats of Nebraska and New York and other northern states have brought forth fruits—meet for repentence—or at least so long as they are threatening to give themselves and the party over to further destruction—should you not assert yourselves? You have borne the heat and burden of the day. Your statesmen have demonstrated their ability not only to take care of the interests of their states and their section, but they have been the only dam against aggression at home and the threat of discredit abroad.

"I, myself, placed at the front for a time, have every reason to be grateful to Democrats everywhere, especially to those of the south. I appreciate the honor thus conferred upon me, and have no regrets for the past; but no one, I think, can know better than I how futile our effort has been in the past and how unpromising the outlook is for the future unless we throw aside isms and grasp the great moral issue now so clearly perceived by the people. The time has come when the really effective Democrats of the country should be recognized, and when they themselves should no longer hesitate, decline or refuse to seek or to accept those honors which are their just due for work well done. It may possibly be that the party will go to defeat again, but since 1896 it has done nothing else under northern leadership and certainly it cannot do worse."

KENTUCKY NEGRO SHOT THREE MEN IN NEW YORK

Arrested Only After a Desperate Battle With Detectives Exchanging Shot For Shot.

New York, March 17.—Ell Lucas, a negro ex-convict, who served a 20 years' sentence in Kentucky for murder, shot three men in the Crescent cafe. The injured men are Roundsman John Walsh and Patrolman James Scott, and John Jones, manager of the cafe. The most serious injury was sustained by Scott, who was shot in the right shoulder. He will probably be paralyzed for life. Fifteen shots were fired. The fifty patrons of the place sought safety behind the bar, under tables and behind barricades of chairs. Lucas, still shooting, backed out of the place and escaped. He entered the cafe in an ugly mood and was ordered out. This angered him and he pulled one of the three revolvers he carried and began shooting. Lucas was later arrested at Fifty-sixth street and Broadway after a fight which was almost as desperate as the original in the cafe. Before he was subdued he had exchanged shot for shot with two detectives, having reloaded his revolvers. When Lucas was brought back to a police station he was battered and bloody from head to foot.

JUDGE BRISTER DECIDES CASE

That Has Been In Litigation For 28 Years, and Has Many Interesting Features.

The Advocate herewith publishes in full the decision of Probate Judge Brister in the Maholm case, as it is one of long standing and general interest:

In the Probate court of Licking county, Ohio.

In the matter of the estate of Jane T. Maholm, deceased.

Exceptions to Twelfth Account of Amanda Maholm Bline, administratrix of said estate.

This cause comes into this court upon the exceptions filed therein by Eliud Schrader, as administrator de bonis non of the estate of Benjamin W. Pratt deceased, by C. and C. H. Follett, his attorneys, and Edward M. Downer, as executor of the last will and testament of Sylvester Spellman, deceased, by J. B. Jones, his attorney, to the twelfth account, filed by Amanda Maholm Bline, as administratrix of the estate of James T. Maholm deceased, in this court. S. M. Hunter and J. M. Swartz appear for the latter.

This hearing is a part of a cause celebre that has occupied the attention of our courts for nearly 28 years, until it has become historic. The original case was commenced in the Licking County Common Pleas court in 1878. Since then, this case, with other allied cases, has been tried and retried, in all aspects and upon all sorts of questions, in the Probate court, the Common Pleas court, the Circuit court and the Supreme court. The original plaintiffs and defendants are dead; some of the administrators of the plaintiffs have also passed away; but, the case and most of the attorneys in it, still survive another instance of the survival of the fittest, probably, or the final perseverance of the saints.

The exceptors herein except to each and every item of said twelfth account—except the items paid to the Advocate Printing Co.; to C. C. Cooper, court stenographer; to Clerk of Court, J. W. Hursey; to the Probate Court; and an item of $190.80, to the administratrix. This leaves the attorney fees, paid by the administratrix to S. M. Hunter and J. M. Swartz, which the exceptors ask shall be stricken out and disallowed. The exceptors also ask that this account shall be made final.

The contention of the plaintiffs is a legal one. They claim that attorney fees, paid by an administratrix, in the discharge of her duties, are not preferred claims; but that attorneys claiming fees for such services, are to be treated as common creditors.

No question was raised by the exceptors, at the hearing, of the fact of the service being rendered nor as to the value of those services. S. M. Hunter and J. M. Swartz both introduced in evidence their accounts for legal services rendered the administratrix; both testified that they had performed these services for the said estate, at the request of the administratrix; that said services were necessary for the estate; and that the charges therefore were just and reasonable. No evidence was introduced by the exceptors, to attack the value of the services, so the only question before the court, in this hearing, is:

Are attorneys fees, rendered for an administratrix or administrator, for the estate, in the regular course of administration, or in the performance of necessary extraordinary services for the estate, preferred claims, or are they only common claims against the estate?

A great many authorities were quoted, pro and con, by both sides to the contention. The exceptors introduced in evidence the final journal entry in this general case, in the Circuit Court Journal, Vol. 2, pages 286 to 316 and the mandate to carry such order into execution; and claimed that the Circuit court, in said entry, had made a finding in favor of Pratt and Spellman and had made an order of distribution in their favor, excluding the claims of Hunter and Swartz for attorney fees.

Now the gist of the decision of the Circuit court will be found on page 317, Vol. 2, Circuit Court Journal, as follows:

"Neither the administrator of the estate of Benjamin W. Pratt deceased, nor the executor of the will of Sylvester Spellman, deceased, had a lien on the land in the petition described, at the time the same was sold upon the order issued by the Court of Common Pleas of said county; nor has either one of said parties a specific lien on the proceeds of said sale, now in the hands of the administratrix of the estate of James T. Maholm deceased."

On the same page of the Journal, the Court finds that Spellman is a general creditor of the estate and that Pratt, as administrator of Pratt, has a valid claim against the estate. The court then orders, or seems to order, a distribution of the funds of the estate in the hands of the administratrix—after paying the costs herein—to Spellman and Pratt, giving each a specific amount and excluding the claims for attorney fees entirely.

But if Spellman and Pratt are only general creditors and have no lien—as the Circuit court finds—then, they have no preference; and, if the attorneys are only general creditors, they cannot be wholly excluded, but would pro rate, with other creditors.

If the Circuit court attempted to specifically distribute the money in the hands of the administratrix, it seems to this court that that act would be ultra vires.

Sec. 8, Art. 1, of the Constitution of Ohio says, "The Probate court shall have jurisdiction in * * the settlement of the accounts of executors, administrators" etc.

Sec. 524, Revised Statutes of Ohio, says:

"The Probate court shall have exclusive jurisdiction to direct and control the conduct and to settle the accounts of executors and administrators and to order the distribution of estates."

The Circuit Court—Sec. 6, Art. 4, of the Constitution—has the same original jurisdiction as the Supreme court and such appellate jurisdiction as is provided by law. The stream cannot rise higher than its fountain. The Probate court having no authority to make a specific order of distribution, the Circuit court cannot obtain an authority, by appeal, that the lower court never had.

In a citation to Sec. 524, R. S., the Supreme court says: "The only order of distribution here authorized to be made is a general order to the executor or administrator, to distribute the funds remaining in his hands according to law."—Swearinger vs. Morris, 14, O. S., 132; Cox vs. John, 32, O. S. 532.

"An order designating the distributees is not authorized by law."—Armstrong vs. Grandin, 39, O. S., 374.

Is an administrator authorized to employ attorneys, in defense of claims against the estate or in prosecuting claims in favor of it, to be paid for their services out of the funds of the estate?

In Vol. 2, Woerner's American Law of Administration, paragraph 515, we find the following rule laid down:

"It is the duty of every executor and administrator to take the advice of competent counsel, learned in the law, on every question which affects his duty as such, on which he is in doubt. Hence, reasonable fees for such services are proper items of credit in the administration account and will be allowed for legal assistance in resisting claims against the estate, which the administrator does not know to be just and lawful."

Also in paragraph 514, same volume: "The administration is entitled to credit, whether the estate is sufficient to pay all debts or not, for * * expenses in recovering the estate, costs incurred in defending the estate against the claims made thereto by others, etc."

Finally in paragraph 362, same volume, Woerner, says: "But the general rule seems rather to be, that costs incurred by the administrator in defence of claims against the estate, or in prosecuting claims in favor of it, pertain to the administration and are to be allowed in full."

If an administrator employs an attorney, in the settlement of an estate, which may include the defending of claims against the estate, or the prosecution of claims in favor of the estate, is the claim of the attorney, for the services so rendered, a common or preferred claim against the estate?

Sec. 6188, R. S., after determining the regular compensation to be paid executors and administrators, further provides, that "In all cases, such further allowance shall be made as the court shall consider just and reasonable for actual and necessary expenses, and for any extraordinary services, not required of an executor or administrator, in the common course of his duty."

Sec. 6115, R. S., treating of the sale of real estate by an administrator, provides, that:

"The Probate court, in which such action may be pending, shall have full power to determine the equities between the parties and the priorities of lien of the several lienholders on said real estate and to order a distribution of the money arising from the sale of such real estate, according to the respective equities and priorities of lien, as found by the court."

Sec. 6090, R. S., provides the order in which the debts of the decedent shall be paid, as follows:

Sec. 6090, R. S.—Every executor or administrator shall proceed with diligence to pay the debts of the deceased and shall apply the assets to the payment of the debts in the following order:

First—The funeral expenses, those of the last sickness, and the expenses of administration.

The Supreme court of Ohio, passing upon the question of payment for legal services rendered executors and administrators in behalf of the estate they represent, has laid down the following rule, in the case of Thomas, administratrix vs. Moore, in 52 O. S., page 206:

"The law contemplates that the representative will himself pay the value of such service, and be reimbursed, by receiving credit for the amount paid in the settlement of his accounts. Such items constitute a part of the expenses of administration, which, together with the funeral expenses, take precedence, under our Statute, of all other demands."—R. S., Sec. 6090.

The latest deliverance of the Supreme court, upon this question of compensation to attorneys, will be found in the case of Smith vs Rhodes and Will, 68 O. S., page 508, as follows:

"The Probate court examined and approved the expense account in advance of its payment. That Court had all the light on the facts, that could have been shed, on an examination of a claim for reimbursement, had the administrator paid the attorney in advance, and taken credit for the same in his account. In this instance, the attorney fees were examined and approved, in advance of payment and, on final account, ordered paid from the assets of the estate. The subject had been fully adjudicated and ended. We think the Probate court had authority to do this. Sec. 6188, R. S., after fixing the ordinary compensation for executors and administrators, provides that "in all cases such further allowance shall be made as the court shall consider just and reasonable, for actual and necessary expenses, and for any extraordinary services, not required of an executor or administrator in the common course of his duty."

The exceptors also ask that this account be made final, on the authority of Sec. 6066, R. S.

That section of the revised statutes provides that time shall not be extended by the court beyond five years, from the date of the administration bond, for the collection of the assets of the estate.

It is in evidence in this hearing that the estate herein is defendant in suits in the Common Pleas and Supreme court, brought by the exceptors herein.

Upon a full review of the law and the evidence in this hearing, it is the judgment and order of the court that these exceptions be overruled; that the claims of S. M. Hunter and J. M. Swartz for legal services for this estate are preferred claims and are to be paid in their order; and that this account cannot be made final and that this estate cannot be settled, as long as it is defendant in adverse litigation brought against it, in the courts of this state.

WHAT THE KIDNEYS DO.

Their Unceasing Work Keeps Us Strong and Healthy.

All the blood in the body passes through the kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys filter the blood. They work night and day. When healthy they remove about 500 grains of impure matter daily, when unhealthy some part of this impure matter is left in the blood. This brings on many diseases and symptoms—pain in the back, headache, nervousness, hot, dry skin, rheumatism, gout, gravel, disorders of the eyesight and hearing, dizziness, irregular heart, debility, drowsiness, dropsy, deposits in the urine ,etc But if you keep the filters right you will have no trouble with your kidneys.

Charles W. Cooper, employed at Geo. Hermann's clothing store, and living at 223 Hoover St., Newark, O., says: "Backache distressed me continually for a long time. There was a dull aching in the loins and my back was very weak. Besides this I had trouble with the kidney secretions, which were irregular and disturbed my sleep at night. I was usually just as tired in the morning as when I went to bed. Nothing I could get seemed to help any until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills procured at Crayton's drug store. I had heard a great deal about the wonderful action of this remedy on the kidneys and bladder, but I was greatly surprised by the quick effect in my case. I improved rapidly under the treatment until the pain in the back ceased and the action of the kidneys became natural. A few boxes made a complete cure."

IMPORTATION OF SHORT HORNS

An Interesting History of the Development of This Breed, by J. H. Montgomery.

In speaking of the early importation of shorthorns we will begin after history had an authentic record of 45 years. In 1775 a Mr Heaton of England, emigrated to America and for some years was a butcher in the then provincial city of New York. In 1791 it is said that he returned to England and bought several head of shorthorn cattle of George Culley, a breeder living in Northamberland. Again in 1796 he made an importation from the Collings herd and placed them with his former importation on his farm in Westchester county, New York, where he then resided.

The next importation was that of Gough and Miller, 1782. These were designated as two different breeds—the milk breed and the beef breed; the former were shorthorns and it was claimed they were great milkers, giving 32 quarts daily. The beef breed were no doubt longhorns and afterwards were discarded by well informed shorthorn breeders.

Our next importation I will speak of was by Col. Lewis Sanders in 1817 and was brought to Grass Hills, Ky. He had an account of Chas. Colling's great sale of shorthorns in 1810 and sent an order to the house of Buchanan, Smith & Co., of Liverpool. They employed Mr. J. C. Etches a celebrated butcher who purchased 12 head, eight shorthorns and four longhorns, of the latter two of each sex, of the former four of each sex.

As yet there was no herd book. Five years after the Sanders importation Mr. Coates published the first English herd book. The longhorn bull Rising Son (6386) with seven of his crosses on shorthorns were permitted to creep into both the English and American herd books. From this importation some of Mr. Bakewell's longhorns found their way into the Scioto valley, but no trace of them can be found now. In a future article I may give a description of these.

From 1817 to 1830 there were some ten importations into the eastern states. The importation that more particularly interests us at this date was that of Walter Dun who lived near Lexington, Ky., who was an enterprising farmer.

In 1833 Mr. Dun sent a commission to a friend of his, William Douglas, living in the south of Scotland, to go into Yorkshire, England and buy shorthorn cattle of the best quality, with no stint in price any where in reason. The order was executed—cattle shipped at Liverpool, landed at Philadelphia and reached Kentucky November 26, 1833. A second importation of three bulls and four cows was made in 1836. After Mr. Dun's death, which occurred August 4, 1838, a third importation of four head arrived. Mr. Dun had a partner in his former importation, who died a short time before Walter Dun. His part of the shorthorns was sold at public sale bringing $1117 per head. Mr. Dun's four sons, James, John, Robert and Walter, retained their father's cattle and sold their estate and came to Madison county, Ohio, where they possessed a large tract of land. They brought their shorthorns with them and were among the early shorthorn breeders of Ohio. Their herd became famous and although the men are dead, the descendants of their cattle can be found in many states today.

I wish to call attention to the many wonderful changes that occur. Mr. Dun, although a Scotchman, and employing a Scotchman to make his importation, did not buy in his native land as we would import today, but went to England for his cattle. The reason is obvious. Scotland at that time was the home of the Galloways, Poled Angus cattle or Doddies, as the Scotch farmer called them. Our Scotch bred animals of today trace back in their pedigrees to shorthorn breeding in Collings day.

Our next importation of considerable note was by the Runicks and other spirited men of the Scioto Valley, near Chillicothe, in 1835 and 1836. In the fall of 1836 the entire herd was put up at auction. The 75 head brought an average of $875. The most of them were bought by Ohio breeders—some of their descendants came to Licking county.

From 1830 to 1840 a few importations were to the state of New York. From 1840 to 1850 the continued depression of financial matters of the country was such that good shorthorns could be bought for from $50 to $100. During this period the importation of shorthorns ceased.

The writer of this history during the years of 1849-50-51 bought good two year old steers for $9 to $12 per head and, in 1850, from a feeder in Fairfield county (Dan Musser) the choice of 40 out of 50 head for $14 per head; bought good fat cows and heifers for from $8 to $12 per head, drove them on foot to Pittsburg, sold in the Allegheny market for $3 per cwt. net, which would be about $1.60 live cwt.

In 1852 a very great change of the finances of the country commenced. Agricultural products advanced, beef and pork soon doubled in price. This stimulated shorthorn breeders.

In 1853 Robert A. Alexandria, an Englishmen of Woodford county, Ky. imported 61 head, probably the largest shorthorn importation ever made. He placed these on his 3000 acres of blue grass farm. Among this importation was the Duchess of Athol and Duke of Ardrie, which I may call attention to farther below. He was a breeder of Southdown sheep and fine blooded horses.

When I was on his farm some years ago and purchased a bull, the eighth Duke of Woodford, Mr. Broadhead, his manager, took me to his horse pasture and showed me the mother of the great trotter, Maude S. Robert never married, at his death his property falling to his brother, A. J. Alexandria, now deceased.

In 1853 an importation of 20 head was made by Dr. Watts of Chillicothe, Ohio. Sixteen were put up at auction, making an average of $1332. From 1853 to 1860 great importations were made of shorthorns into Ohio, Kentucky and New York, which up to this time was literally the home of the shorthorns.

Among the importers from Ohio was H. H. Rankins of Clinton county. Elias Fasset of New York, president of what was then called Steubenville and Indiana railroad, but what is now the Pan Handle, saw the importation of Hankins and ordered a bull and a cow to be placed on his farm near Granville, Ohio.

The first importation of shorthorns from Scotland was made by the Shakers of Union village, Warren county, Ohio, in 1854. These cattle were bought of Mr. Douglas, who, 21 years prior to this had bought shorthorns of Mr. Dunn. Mr. Douglas seeing the superiority of the cattle of England, introduced them into Scotland.

In 1853 Morris and Becar of New York, bought of the Earl of Ducie, Duchess 66th and the Duke of Gloster. After the death of Mr. Becar they passed into the hands of Mr. Thorn, who imported the 59th and 66th Duchess, afterwards they went into the hands of Walcott and Campbell. The Duchess of Athel, owned by Alexandria of Kentucky, was of Bates breeding, being held in trust and no females sold.

The great sale of Campbell was in 1873. Campbell of Onedia, N. Y., having bought Walcott's interest in the herd was the cause of the Duchess' family being widely scattered—some going back to England and others remaining in the states. At this sale, which I attended, the lowest price for a Duchess was $18,000 and the highest $35,000, this amount for the 10th Duchess of Geneva bought by Lord Bective of England. She was the dam of the 3d Duke of Oneida which I had bought three years prior to this sale and for which I paid $5000, being a calf five months old. I used him for four years, leaving me some valuable offspring, which took the lead at state and various fairs of Ohio. After the four years use of him I sold him to Were and Goodwin of Kentucky, for $12,500. His dam, 10th Duchess, bred until 17 years old. She and her offspring sold for $300,000. No other shorthorn before or since has made such a financial record.

TWO CLERKS IMPLICATED IN NEW YORK "JURY FIXING" CASES.

New York, March 17.—After an exhaustive study of the charges brought against the trial lawyers of the Metropolitan Railway Company in connection with "jury fixing" an bribery of witnesses, City Judge Seabury has determined that no corroborative evidence had been adduced providing a prima facie case against Daniel F. Patterson, whose name was mentioned in connection with Ambrose F. McCabe in the same series of cases which were used against the latter.

Among the witnesses examined by Judge Seabury was John C. Foley, formerly trial clerk of Part 3, of the City Court. Foley is one o the five clerks discharged last fall by Thomas F. Smith, chief clerk of the court, under charges connected with extorting illegal fees from lawyers. Foley is also charged, in company with E. G. Tully, clerk of Part 1, with capturing jurors. Tully gave important testimony, and while Judge Seabury will not divulge the nature of that evidence he evidently sets great store by it as corroborative. Among other admissions made by Tully was one that a son of his was employed in the office of the Metropolitan up to the time of his dismissal from the courts.

THE LITTLE PEOPLE AND the FAIRY RING

By NORAH O'CONNELL

Copyright, 1906, by Hamilton Musk

"YE don't believe in the 'little people'—the Leprechauns? Arrah, wait till I'm after tellin'ye what befell Sorley Boy McDonnel on St. Patrick's night wan year ago and what befell Kitty Creegan the year before on the same night. And it's true for ye, every blessed wurrud."

As he paused for breath the old man drew his pipe from his pocket, lighted it and gazed dreamily over the beautiful Irish landscape. Then he continued:

"To begin it so's ye'll understand it I must ax if ye've ever been in a forest and come suddint-like on a bit av an openin' bechune the trees, wid a reg'lar circle-like av grass thicker and darker than the rest? Well, that's a fairy ring. The little people dance on two nights of the year, on midsummer night and the blessed Patrick's night.

"Now, thin, seein' that that blessed saint wint barefooted durin' his loife, the little people bring a pair av the beautifulest shoes ye ever laid yer eyes on. They, bein' fairy shoes, would fit any wan, big or little, but to get them that wan must come to the fairy ring on this night at 11 exactly and dance wid the little people the whole hour bechune 11 and 12. If ye get tired and the fairies dance ye down, then ye are thrown over into a quickset hedge and a pair of the clumsiest ould brogans in the wurruld is fastened on yer feet and ye can't get them off till the next year the same time, and the second time, if ye can't dance wid the brogans, some one else may do it for ye, but if he fails he must wear a pair, too, all that year.

"Oh, it doesn't do to disbelave in the little people. Arrah! I could tell ye stories av things seen by cousins and aunts, but I'll stick to this wan now. Did I ever see 'em meself? No, but I nearly did wan night whin I wor comin' home from the fair. I sat down to rest meself and fell fast asleep, and so missed seein' 'em.

"Well, Kitty Creegan was pretty and good, but she and her father and mother wor very poor. They lived in a wee bit cabin just over the bog. She t'iled airly and late, but all she could do was to put the bite and the sup in their mouths. She spun and wove and sewed her a gown and a cape wid a hud to it, but couldn't make shoes.

"Now, there do be an ould custom that all the colleens comin' in to mass Sunday marnin's come wid bare feet till they reach the crossin' beyant, and thin they puts on their stockin's and shoes before they enter the church. And the young lads 'll be standin' in a line ready to lace the shoes, each for the girrul he likes best, and it is so he shows his likin' for her, and if a colleen lets him lace her shoes he knows she won't say no whin he axes her to go to the priest.

"Kitty Creegan couldn't get a pair av shoes, and, bein' a good, pious girrul, she wouldn't forego her duty, so she goes barefooted to church wid her head helt high and her lips shut tight. Sorley Boy McDonnel, he used to stand along wid the other lads, but he never offered to lace the shoes av any av thim, but he always looked slantin' out av his eyes to see if Kitty had shoes yet, and she hadn't, so he always walked away.

"Now, an ould gossip told Kitty over the tayenps all about the fairy ring and the pretty shoes. The next week was St. Patrick's night and a full moon, so as Kitty knew where the nearest fairy ring was she wint out at 11 o'clock and stood there, her little heart beatin' tattoo, for she thought if she could get a pair of shoes the Sorley Boy McDonnel would perhaps ax to lace thim for her.

"There wasn't a lighter footed colleen in County Donegal, and she thought she could never tire av dancin', but sure she never danced wid fairies before, and belike they bewitched her, for just before the cocks crowed she sank to the ground faintin'-like, and whin she kem to her sinses she found there was the roughest great brogans fastened on her feet ye ever saw. She tried to get thim off, but no use, and, to make a long story short, they wor there to stay.

"Kitty most cried her eyes out, and all the other colleens wor laughin' at her, for girruls understand each other, and wan told the Sorley Boy, and he said never a word, but wint to the wise woman, and she tould him, too, that if any wan goes to dance the little people down for another, if he lost he would have a pair worse nor Kitty's, and she would have her same waus, but if he danced thim down the big brogans would fall from Kitty's feet, and she would have the loveliest, beautifulest pair av shoes, and they'd never wear out and she could never get tired in her work while she wore thim.

"The Sorley Boy said nothin' to no one, but every day he practiced dancing, and he wor a good dancer to begin with. And he wint to the fairy ring that night with a good aisy brogan on each foot.

"The little people wor all gathered there, and he threw his hat into the ring and said in a loud v'ice:

"'I'm here to dance for Kitty Creegan's shoes.'

"They all laughed like little tinklin' bells, but the music struck up, and they all wint to work at it. The Sorley Boy saved himself at first, and the music wint faster and faster, and they jigged up and down and all around the ring. Ye mustn't step out av the ring at all, at all.

"So he kep' on and niver lost breath a minute, but along toward the stroke av 12 his feet felt like lid, and he could hardly lift 'em, but he thought av Kitty, and his feet got limberer-like, and he danced away, doin' proud to the county. Thin he heard the first cock's crow, and thin another, but he kep' on, for he thought the little people might be decavin' him, till finally wan av thim just let fly at him the finest pair av beautifulest little shoes made like thim in Dublin, County Cork, for the quality and gintry, and they struck him bechune the two eyes. But he didn't care. He had the shoes.

"So he wint singin' along till he kem to the Creegans' cabin, and the way he banged on the dure was fierce, and whin ould man Creegan wint to the dure wid his shillalah who should be there but the Sorley Boy, and he said nothin' but 'For Kitty' and left, and ould Creegan, bein' half blind, did not know who sent 'em. But Kitty came runnin' in, and she wor barefooted and the ould brogans gone.

"Kitty knew who did it, and the next Sunday Kitty wint to mass wid beautiful new shoes hangin' on her arrum wid the red and white knitted stockin's, and whin she sat down by the wayside like the other colleens and put 'em on t'was Sorley Boy McDonnel who kem straight to her and kneeled down widout a wurrud and laced thim up, and I think he tied himself up wid the strings, for they wor called in church next Sunday."

"I'M HERE TO DANCE FOR KITTY CREEGAN'S SHOES."

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

MRS. READER READY TO CHAPERON SANTO DOMINGO.

New York, March 17.—Mrs. Ella Rawls Reader, chaperone of Santo Domingo and foe of the modus vivendi, waits in all patience for the Macedonian cry from the Caribbean. Things have been going by sixes and sevens in the Black Republic; United States gunboats are getting in each other's way, and revolution follows revolution, yet the Dominicans need not despair. Mrs. Reader has notified Elihu Root, secretary of state, that she will soon proceed to the island, hold elections in the name of the people and assume the place to which she had been appointed as First Lady of the Treasury.

Then there will be no need for further worry about the million dollars of customs duties which are now piling up in the City bank, and neither Jiminezits, Horacists, nor the followers of Morales or Caceres need apply. The whole island waits for a woman to intervene who will mould its destinies, find a president and lead the way out of a financial wilderness.

"Of course, at the present time," said Mrs. Reader, when I saw her in her office on the top floor of an office building at No. 45 Wall street, "I have nothing to say. I am just waiting, and I intend to let Mr. Root do all the talking. Just please say that I am the most ignorant woman in New York."

Mrs. Reader's notice to Mr. Root reads as follows:

"I have the honor to enclose herewith for Your Excellency's information a certified copy of my authority from the Central Patriotic Committee of Monte Cristi, in Santo Domingo, which, representing all the other patriotic committees in Santo Domingo as well as the people of Santo Domingo empowers me to represent them in all parts of the world and to obtain for them international recognition and an arrangement of their financial difficulties."

In all the due forms of diplomatic heraldry she also tells the secretary of state that she will issue a call for the appointment of an international committee which will take up the question of the relation of the republic to all its foreign creditors.

Comparatively little is known of the Central Patriotic Committee of Monte Cristi, but it is destined, if Mrs. Reader has her way, to be as renowned as The Three Tailors of Tooley street, who addressed to the British parliament a petition with that memorable preamble, "We, the people of England." There are few diplomats, however, who would argue themselves unknown by saying that they did not know Mrs. Reader.

Not so many years ago she had a typewriting office in the Mills building in this city. She transcribed prospectuses, legal briefs and such things, and from coming in contact with the busy brains of Wall street, she arrived at the conclusion that she might as well control the destinies of men and of nations as to be continually recording the plans of others. So she became a promoter, a dealer in railroads, both new and second-hand; an agent for valuable concessions, written on the best line typewriting paper and neatly folded and brass bound. She acquired copper mine concessions in Peru, and made contracts for improving the territories of Eastern potentates and sued millionaires for breach of contract.

It occurred to her about two years ago that Santo Domingo needed reconstruction. So she acquired many reams of the very best Irish linen and got a typewriter with the latest improvements and went to work. In this task she was assisted by her husband. Mrs. Reader sent him to the distressed island with her picture and also with plans and specifications for a new fiscal system. It was not very long before she discovered that Santo Domingo wished her to be the financial agent of the republic, and everything was in readiness for the change when a United States gunboat appeared in the offing and its commander assumed charge of the custom house.

RELATION OF ACTOR AND THE AUTHOR

New York, March 17.—Most authors I have met believe sincerely when their play is successfully produced that they have made it so—that it is entirely their work. This may frequently be the case, but often, however, in the estimation, the success is due to the interpretation.

The best plays may fail and a mediocre effort succeed by its interpretation. How frequently will an author tear his hair, shouting, "Not a bit like it!" when delivered by an inferior actor, and vice versa! How often is the author amazed to find a line infinitely better than conceived by him because some artist gave it a shade of meaning the author never dreamed of when writing it? A great story is frequently spoiled in the telling; a common-place one is likewise made to appear great by its delivery.

The actor needs the author, the author needs the actor. The actor is always indebted to the author for the idea, unless, as is at present so often the case, the actor is "in on" the building of the play. I read recently of some enthusiastic visionaries who purposed doing away with the stellar system, and I smiled at their childish simplicity. The greatest plays have been written on inspiration of the author for some individual. Moliere's inspiration was himself. Shakespeare was inspired by the many charming companions in his company, reproducing in many their individualities. Of course, there were for him many other inspirations than actors, but many of his actors enhanced the tales of Arden by living there with him. In the modern drama Sarah Bernhardt was in all, or nearly all, of Sardou's plays his inspiration.

Many former actors are now authors, and where actors find it difficult to obtain material it seems to me that in the course of evolution actors will soon be writing their own plays. Of course, authors may be inspired to write the most appealing plays without the inspiration of an individual, as in the case of Ibsen, Sudermann, and Hauptmann, who write what they see about them, but whose plays could not possibly succeed, and are good only to read unless given splendid interpretations.

"The Rivals" was a failure when first produced.

America has now, I believe, the greatest character actors in the world. Why, then, shouldn't they be an inspiration to authors? I believe that here will be developed, and are now being developed, the great dramatists of the future, and they will be assisted by the actor. The dearth of material lies in the fact that a few managers hold all the good authors. It matters not to them whether one play succeeds or not; they have so many. Change these conditions; let the author and actor more frequently come together, and we shall have more successes.

Miss Lipman was inspired to write "Belle Bonbon" for herself, and when it was determined that I should go into the play her inspiration for me led her to write Jean Poujol, the greatest part I have ever played, and for which I have received more praise than for any other.

This is what inspiration will do.

Loyal to St. Patrick.

Officer Pat Carroll of the city police force, is the sage of the police department. Very few weighty matters come up in the public eye which have not been settled in the mind of this officer almost as soon as the question arises. His wisdom has spread over the city and it is not at all infrequent for people to bring their problems, domestic or otherwise, to the officer and ask for his opinion.

The climax was reached yesterday afternoon, however, when two youngsters, not yet in their teens, approached the Sage with the usual amount of awe which is customary when a boy addresses a policeman, and asked, "Mr. Carroll, aint it so that nobody but a Nirishman c'n wear a Shamrock on Saint Patrick's day?" The biz policeman was staggered for an instant but he soon recovered his composure and told the young man that only Irishmen could wear the Green on St. Patrick's day. The lad turned to his companion with a "I told you so" and the two went on their way probably marveling at the vast amount of knowledge stored in the brain of one of Newark's finest.

NEWARK POST OFFICE

tainable under the present conditions and with the present force of men.

Revenue From Box Rent.

Of the several hundred boxes which are for rent at the postoffice, there are not a dozen which are not rented. The revenue from this source amounts to more than $500 per year. There is sufficient demand for boxes to warrant the installing of another section of the boxes, but there is no room in the present location for such a section. Last summer the lobby of the office was decreased in size to make more room in the rear to facilitate the handling of the mail so at present there is no room for more boxes.

The Dead Letter Box.

"I wish you would tell the public for the postoffice employes here, about their carelessness in mailing letters." This was considered a peculiar statement by the reporter, but Mr. Seigfried's statement which followed threw much light on the matter. "You would hardly believe it," he continued, "but we have letters come into the office which actually bear no address, whatever. Many times they are mailed without postage and when these have no card in the corner showing a return address, the only recourse is to send them to the dead letter office. Every two weeks we forward a big bunch of them to Washington. There they are opened and if there is any possible clue as to the identity of the sender, the epistle or package is returned to them. About half of these letters are claimed at the Newark office before we have an opportunity to send them out of the city. People remember that they have forgotten to put a stamp on their letter or to address it and ask for its return."

Newspaper Postage.

This is another feature of the postoffice business which very few people know. The revenue from this source in Newark will average about $230 per month. All this goes by weight. Uncle Sam charges the newspapers one cent per pound for delivering the papers outside of the county. Six publications in Newark contribute to this department. The Advocate, daily and semi-weekly, The American Tribune, daily and semi-weekly, the German Express and The Synoptic. All these papers are listed as second class matter. The papers are carried free within the county. However, no daily paper will be delivered within the city by the city carrier.

Lock Your Boxes.

In speaking of the lock boxes, Mr. Seigfried stated that there was much mail lost every month by people who carelessly left their boxes unlocked. Complaints flooded the office a few weeks ago and Postmaster Heisey and Mr. Seigfried made an investigation one night and found twenty-three boxes unlocked. Another time twelve were found open.

Interurbans as Mail Carriers.

Newark has the distinction of being the first city in the world where a contract was signed for the electric railroads to carry government mail. The contract was signed in 1891 when the Newark and Granville line was first completed. Granville people who wanted to send a letter to Newark up until that time, had to decide upon the matter 24 hours ahead of time. The mail was sent around by the way of Columbus. William C. Christian, now president of the Board of Public Service, signed the contract for the electric road, he being the secretary-treasurer of the company. The contract provided for the carrying of the mail between the college town and Newark. That gave the residents of Granville quick mail service to Newark. This was the first contract with an electric line ever signed by the government.

Now there are hundreds of trolley lines carrying mail for Uncle Sam. A contract was signed recently by a government representative and the interurbans, to carry the mail between Kirkersville and Newark, via Hebron.
